CONGRESS ASKS FULL STORY OF LITTELL FIRING

Biddle Assistant Is Ousted by F.D.R.

BY WILLIAM MOORE.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—Complete disclosure of the feud that is rocking the justice department was promised on Capitol hill tonight despite the move by which members of congress said President Roosevelt attempted to clamp on the lid today by firing Norman M. Littell, assistant attorney general.

Members of both houses said the full story will be brought out by the senate judiciary committee when it receives Mr. Roosevelt's nomination of Littell's successor for confirmation by the senate.

Committee members declined to comment on the ground that they would be prejudging the confirmation, but other members of congress said there was little doubt that the whole story would be laid at public hearings.

Biddle, a Likely Witness

It was predicted that witnesses would include Atty. Gen. Biddle, who got Littell fired, and Littell himself, who has attacked Biddle's relationship with Thomas G. Corcoran in the conduct of justice department cases. Corcoran is a former Roosevelt adviser who is reputed to be the sponsor of a host of government pay rollers.

The identity of Littell's successor remained a secret. But Littell told a press conference that the publicity attending the feud would prevent the President from appointing "a Tommy Corcoran henchman."

Developments today in the slambang feud between Littell and Biddle dwarfed those of yesterday, when Littell's charges that Biddle had attempted to settle the department's condemnation suit against the Savannah (Ga.) Shipyard's company, thru friendship for Corcoran, were made public. Today's action: 1. President Roosevelt fired Littell, charging insubordination, making good on threats to dismiss official family executives who let their departmental fights become public.

Inquiry Is Sought

2. Rep. Voorhis (D., Cal.) introduced a resolution for a house investigation of Littell's dismissal, as asserting that a "fearless, conscientious, honest public servant had been discharged for following orders of congressional committees."

[Littell says he was dismissed for testifying before congressional committees against administration enterprises.]

3. Sen. Ferguson (R., Mich.) and other members of the senate were investigating committee expressed regret that Littell had been discharged. It was this committee which made public Littell's accusations against Biddle.

4. Littell charged in a new letter to the senate investigating committee that Biddle "does not tell the truth," in denying that Littell was asked to resign on account of testimony Littell gave the committee.

Littell wrote the committee he was "shocked indeed that the attorney general should again attempt to impose upon and mislead" the committee.

Fight Started Over Tommy's Wife, He Says

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 30.—Screen Actor Jon Hall, a dapper but hesitant witness, reddened and stroked his moist brow today under strident questioning by which defense counsel sought to establish discrepancies in his testimony concerning the free for all brawl last Aug. 5 in Band-leader Tommy Dorsey's apartment.

The 29 year old Hall, attired in a dove gray pinstripe flannel suit, also wore a transparent cap over the end of his nose, which he contends was virtually severed in the altercation. He appeared as complaining witness in the assault trial of Dorsey, Dorsey's wife, and their neighbor, Allen Smiley.

Earlier in the day, Jane Churchill, a singer who was a guest at the party along with several others who had met at a Hollywood night club, told the jury what she had seen of the fracas from a vantage point in the Dorsey apartment.

Got Blow on Face

Describing the melee, Hall said at one time Smiley was behind him "and then I got a blow across the face; I honestly believe that's when I got cut."

Smiley's counsel, Jerry Giesler, seized upon this statement in cross-examination, asking if he recalled, in testifying before the grand jury last Sept. 12, that he had said: "Then Mrs. Dorsey grabbed me by the hair and it was then that she cut me with a knife or a bottle."

"Was that your testimony before the grand jury?" asked Giesler.

"To the best of my knowledge, yes," Hall answered.

Was Half-Conscious

"But today you said, by inference, that Smiley cut you," persisted Giesler.

"Well, that might be true, too," said Hall. "When a guy gets a blow between the eyes and is half-conscious, he can't recall everything."

Asked how he got a wound on the chin, Hall said he believed Mrs. Dorsey gave him that.

Earlier, Hall testified that he had never met Smiley before the party, and that they had had no argument until Smiley appeared, apparently to separate Hall and Dorsey.

"One word just led to another, and finally to physical action. Is that right?" inquired Giesler.

"It certainly is," said Hall.

6 Feet 1; Weighs 210.

Hall conceded he was in "fair shape" physically the night of the fight. He had said, in answer to Giesler's questions, that he weighed between 210 and 212 pounds, that he was 6 feet 1 1/2 inches tall, and that his athletic background included swimming and gymnastics.

Under direct examination, Hall told a chronological story of his version of the melee. He explained that earlier that night, which was Mrs. Dorsey's birthday, he had been to the Clover club, swank night club, and there saw Dorsey, Mrs. Dorsey, and Smiley, Dorothea Nesbitt, woman golf star; Antonio Icaza, Panamanian seaman on leave; Bernard Mitchell, Chicago plastics manufacturer, and Miss Churchill.

[Bernard A. Mitchell, 4300 Lake Shore dr., president of the Mitchell Manufacturing company, 5555 Clybourn av., denied last night that he had been in the Smiley apartment and denied he had tried to stop the brawl. "I was just a casual guest who had been invited over to the Dorsey apartment," he said.]

CARLOAD OF BOMBS BLOWS UP; WRECKS NEW MEXICO HOMES

Clovis, N. M., Nov. 30 (AP).—At least one person was seriously injured today by the explosion of a freight car of bombs in a Santa Fe railway train at the Tolar, N. M., siding.

The blast, heard here 43 miles away, demolished several buildings at Tolar. Fire spread to some of derelict cars.

Len J. Cassell, Santa Fe public relations executive, reported from division headquarters at Amarillo, Tex., that the train of 81 cars contained only the one car of bombs, 31 cars back from the engine, but that others of 39 derelict cars contained gasoline.

First reports to Cassell indicated the train crew escaped injury. He named the seriously injured person as Jesse Brown, Tolar, who was reported hurt as he stood in front of his home.

NEW M. P. URGES BRITAIN TO TAKE TRIPOLI, BENGALI

LONDON, Nov. 30 (Reuters).—Britain should take Tripoli and Bengali or any other ports which would fulfill her requirements in the eastern Mediterranean, suggested Maj. F. W. Cundiff, Conservative, in his maiden speech in the house of commons today.

They should, if necessary, be taken not as mandated territory, but to have and hold for all time, he said. Britain should guarantee that never again shall Malta suffer as she has suffered in the past, or the Mediterranean sea be closed to this country, Cundiff concluded.

Yank Brings Wife His Child by Girl Friend

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 30 (Special).—Pvt. Arthur E. Whitehouse today was helping fix the formula and perform other nursemaid duties for his 10 months old daughter, born of his extra-marital romance with a nurse in Newfoundland, while he continued his so far unsuccessful efforts to reconcile his red haired wife to the surprise.

Whitehouse, 29, arrived here Tuesday with the baby after an eventful trip from Newfoundland which was interrupted twice by the child's illness. The baby and Whitehouse are now at the Germantown home of his mother, Mrs. Anna Whitehouse, who gave up her night shift job in a war plant to help him care for his daughter.

His wife, Mrs. Rose Whitehouse, a candy clerk in a 10 cent store here, has been unavailable for comment ever since her husband's disconcerting return, and even he is reported to have been unable to meet her.

Life Is All Upset

"Naturally, she is upset about all this," her brother, James Montgomery, said. "I don't know of any separation between her and her husband, but I can't imagine her wanting to go back to him now. I was in the last war and I know something about these things. I know if I had done something like that I wouldn't expect my wife to take me back, but my sister will have to decide about this."

Whitehouse had been in Newfoundland since a few months after he entered the army in January, 1942. There he met a civilian nurse, whose name he would not disclose. When he learned she was to become a mother he wrote to his wife about it in the hope she would welcome his baby because they had been childless in nine years of marriage. His wife, however, didn't care for the idea and told him so. The soldier said he pleaded with her in several letters, but she didn't change her mind and finally didn't reply to his letters.

On 32 Day Furlough

The baby's mother was agreeable to his sole custody of the child, Whitehouse said, adding: "As far as I'm concerned, she's dead. She didn't want the baby and she didn't want me."

Whitehouse said the army gave him a 32 day furlough to bring his daughter, Geraldine Mary, to his mother's home here. The trip was delayed 12 days because of Geraldine's illness. She developed pneumonia on the first leg of their trip and was cared for in an army hospital in Newfoundland, and they again stopped at an army hospital at Presque Isle, Me., for treatment when she had an infection.

The father said he believed his wife would be won over if she would only see his blonde, blue-eyed daughter. He asserted he would persist in his efforts to contact his wife in the hope of "smoothing things over."

ALBERT B. FALL DIES; PRINCIPAL IN OIL SCANDAL

El Paso, Tex., Nov. 30 (AP).—Albert B. Fall, 83, secretary of the interior under the Harding administration, died here late today.

Fall figured in the Teapot Dome scandal and, six years after he left the cabinet, was found guilty in 1929 of taking a bribe and was fined $100,000 and sentenced to one year in jail. He served 10 months in prison, most of the time in the hospital, and retired to his ranch.

Born at Frankfort, Ky., Fall rose from prospector, ranch hand, and attorney at Las Cruces, N. M., to a cabinet post. His bribe conviction grew out of the lease of the Elk Hills, Cal., naval oil reserve to his former prospecting partner, the late Edward L. Doheny.

Mrs. Fall died in 1943. Two daughters survive.

GEN. MacARTHUR'S HDQ., Philippines, Dec. 1 (Friday)—(AP).—Five thousand more Japanese soldiers were killed or drowned at sea—that makes 26,000 who tried, but never got to Leyte—as American planes for the second straight day accounted for an Ormoc bound enemy convoy yesterday, Gen. MacArthur announced today.

Altogether the convoy was cautiously scattered over a wide area, the Yank fighter planes tracked down all of the ships, sinking a 9,000 ton transport and three small freighters, and engulfing a 5,000 ton freighter and a destroyer in flames.

Night Patrol Bags Vessel

One freighter was bagged as far west as Mindoro by a night patrol plane. Others, including one heavily loaded transport, were blasted off Masbate and off Cebu.

The P-4's and P-40's went down to maulhead height as they raised the enemy's reinforcement losses in attacks on seven convoys to 29 transports, aggregating 103,750 tons, and 18 escorting warships sunk.

Returning flyers reported they hit Japanese headquarters at Palompon, west Leyte, on the way back. In the previous raid, announced Thursday, the American flyers got one of their biggest bags in Leyte gulf, sinking 10 transports and three escorting destroyers. The headquarters announcement of this action estimated that 4,000 Japanese troops headed for the island were lost, since most of the ships were sunk well out at sea. Two of the vessels had reached Ormoc and were being unloaded when the fighters swooped down and destroyed them. One vessel blew into pieces when hit.

Two Jap Divisions Lost

Destruction of probably two Japanese reinforcing divisions by American air attacks on convoys promised to speed the battle for Leyte Island once the tropical deluges cease and major ground action again is possible.

In attacks on shipping in Carmen bay at Cebu, reported today, near misses were scored on a destroyer, a destroyer escort, and one of two large transports.

The Cebu raid brought 15 to 20 enemy fighters out of the clouds. Two of the six nipponese aircraft destroyed in the widespread actions were bagged there. American losses for the day were two planes.

Jap Submarine Sunk

A Japanese submarine was sunk Monday in Ormoc gulf, off the enemy's supply and reinforcement port, today's announcement said.

The submarine was discovered by American destroyers which shelled Ormoc Monday night in the first penetration of the mined enemy waters on the west side of Leyte.

Ground activity continued, although it was of a minor nature, because of torrential rains, but the American forces maintained their pressure on all fronts.

56 U. S. BOMBERS AND 30 FIGHTERS LOST IN DAY'S RAIDS ON NAZIS

LONDON, Nov. 30 (AP).—American Fortresses and Liberators, spearheading an attack by nearly 5,000 allied war planes on oil refineries and rail yards in Germany, drove into great concentrations of anti-aircraft fire today and suffered their heaviest loss of any recent operation.

Fifty-six United States heavy bombers and 30 fighters failed to return, but the majority of the fighters were believed to have landed in friendly territory. This was the largest loss in bombers since April, when 63 went down over Berlin. Three United States Ma-rauder medium bombers and one American fighter also were lost in operations supporting ground troops. The German air force refused to come up in strength and only four enemy interceptors were shot down.

Fortresses striking four synthetic oil plants at Bohlen, Zeitz, Merseburg, and Lutzendorf near Leipzig, roared into a 40 mile square area defended by a concentration of heavy anti-aircraft guns twice the density of that guarding Berlin. It is perhaps the most heavily defended area of its size in the world. Liberators hit the Saarbrücken rail yards. R. A. F. Mosquitos and Lancasters bombed three gasoline plants in the Ruhr.

U. S. 9TH ARMY REACHES ROER ON 20 MILE FRONT

Seizes Three German Towns in Push to Bank of Flooded Stream; Hodges Wins Two Villages.

PARIS, Nov. 20 (AP).—American 9th army troops, striking behind barrages of high explosive and phosphorous shells, swept thru three more German towns today in their new smash at the left end of the Aachen front. Tonight they had reached the flooded Roer river along a 20 mile stretch above and below Julich.

The Roer is the last important natural barrier standing between Gen. Eisenhower's attacking forces and the Rhine, some 25 miles to the east. The attack by three divisions of the 9th army threatened to develop into a drive on Dusseldorf, 28 miles away.

Captured in the surge of Lt. Gen. Simpson's 9th army forces east and northeast of Gellenkirchen were the blackened villages of Linderin, Flossdorf, and Roerdorf, all on or near the west bank of the Roer. In another village, Beek, a mile southwest of Linderin, American troops found more Nazi dead piled in the streets than in any German town yet entered.

On High Ground Near Linnich

Linderin is 14 1/2 miles from the Prussian arsenal and rail city of Munster-Gladbach and stands on high ground overlooking the enemy stronghold of Linnich to the southeast. Flossdorf and Roerdorf are Roer towns between Linnich and Julich. The Yanks laid siege to Linnich.

American troops who captured Kosslar, a mile west of Julich, pushed on to the banks of the Roer, crushed from the northern outskirts of Julich. The Nazis had opened flood gates of Roer river dams, inundating its valley to widths of nearly a mile.

As the Germans reeled back from Bleck under the rain of American shells and before Simpson's doughboys they came under attack by Thunderbolt fighter bombers.

A field dispatch told of the sudden death which overtook the German defenders of Bleck when the 9th army loosed its attack early yesterday. Most of the Germans were out of their dug-in tanks and cellars and were wandering about the streets when American artillery began raining shells into their midst, prisoners said.

Hodges' Men Win Two Towns

As the surviving Germans began withdrawing along the road to Wurm, a mile to the north, another Yank barrage bracketed them. Only remnants reached Wurm under bombing and strafing by Thunderbolts. German 60 ton Tiger tanks were smashed by American eight inch shells, some prisoners taken in Linderin said. The fighter bombers disabled or damaged 44 tanks.

Lt. Gen. Hodges' United States 1st army doughboys on the right of the 9th won the fortified towns of Lammersdorf and Grossbach and virtually put the bloody Hurtgen forest behind them.

Others of Hodges' forces fought a see-saw battle for a bridge across the little Inde river at Inden, midway of the Aachen front, winning back the western end of the span after once losing it to a Nazi counter-attack. On the extreme right Hodges' men smashed eastward from captured Hurtgen to high ground within a mile and a half of the Roer river, cutting an important road between Kleinhau and Brandenberg.

Take 6,000 Prisoners in Day

The 1st army bagged more than 6,000 prisoners during the day of ceaseless fighting on the muddy Cologne plain, and the count of dead and wounded Nazis ran high. Yank troops fighting inside the village of Merode, three and a half miles from the big road center of Duren, lost ground to enemy counter-attacks.

American doughboys fought to keep their grip on a few houses at the western outskirts of Merode, to which they had been driven by repeated enemy counter-attacks after once having driven well inside the village.

"This is first of all—above any objective of river or hill—a battle to kill or imprison Germans," said an Associated Press front dispatch. "The 1st army is having to pay for all this, and German resistance has not weakened anywhere."

Snipers Found Days Afterward

The Germans were not conceding a yard without fighting for it, and few surrendered before they had fired their last cartridge, the dispatch said.

patch said. Even after the most concentrated barrages by allied guns and planes each blackened village still was defended by German troops who somehow survived. For days after a town is flattened and overrun, the ruins continue to yield groups of snipers.

A German military spokesman asserted that 70 allied divisions—perhaps 850,000 men—now were slashing at the western defenses of Germany. The German high command claimed that 74 allied tanks had been knocked out in the last two days.

In almost every sector from Holland to Switzerland the Germans were counter-attacking frequently and hard. This stiffening resistance slowed the advance of Lt. Gen. Patton's 3d army on the Saar front, limiting its gains to an average of about a mile, but in some places up to two miles.

Repels Counter-Attacks.

Patton's 90th infantry division hurled back 10 German counter-attacks in 24 hours, but pushed on a mile to within two miles of Saarlautern, midway between Merzig and Saarbrücken.

Third army tanks which occupied high ground dominating Merzig, near the Luxembourg border, found themselves under artillery fire from the east and west—some shells apparently coming from Siegfried line fortifications. Yank troops were within two miles of Merzig on the northwest, west, and southwest.

Other 3d army troops were fighting forward near Felsberg, three miles southwest of Saarbrücken; at L'Hospital on the German frontier 13 miles southwest of Saarbrücken; and on high ground overlooking Sarre-Union, where street fighting was reported.

[The French war ministry quoted by Paris radio reported that Sarre-Union had fallen.]

7th Army Nears Haguenau.

Troops of Lt. Gen. Patch's United States 7th army, driving toward the German border north of Strasbourg, approached within a mile and a half of the important French city of Haguenau and threatened it with a banking push on the west. Haguenau is 14½ miles from the German frontier.

Northwest of Haguenau a Yank column was nearing a town nine miles from the German frontier. These troops and the Americans in front of Haguenau were passing thru miles of elaborate trench systems, with blockhouses and pillboxes, which the Nazis had not defended.

The German radio said Nazi troops were withdrawing from Haguenau, but an Associated Press dispatch reported the Nazis still were resisting bitterly.

[A Swiss dispatch said French troops had reached the Rhine just north of Basel, thwarting a possible attempt by the German garrison of Huningue on the French side of the river to escape into Switzerland.]

Shelling Strasbourg.

WITH THE U. S. ARMY IN AL-SACE, France, Nov. 30 (AP)—Strasbourg was heavily shelled by enemy guns from across the Rhine today while allied forces continued their advance south of the city.

The 7th army occupied Gerstheim, 12½ miles south of Strasbourg and drove farther southward toward a junction with French 1st army forces striking north along the Rhine.

The French 1st army battled successfully against strong resistance at Bourbach, 11 miles west of Mulhouse. Between Mulhouse and the Rhine the French penetrated deeply into the Harth forest and now have much of the area mopped up.

GENERAL CAN BE CORPORAL IF HE GETS TO BERLIN

U. S. 5TH INFANTRY DIVISION COMMAND POST, Nov. 30 (AP)—All Maj. Gen. Leroy Irwin has to do to become a corporal is to lead his 5th division into Berlin. He can become a 1st class private easier than that.

The boss of the Red Diamond division has been made an honorary private in a battalion of French foot chausseurs. Upon receiving the honor, Irwin was taken to the squad room where the nine other members of the squad showed him his bunk, helmet, rifle, and equipment. It was explained that no recruit will be put in his place in the squad, and then a spokesman concluded:

"Voilà! You are now a private, second class. If you fight as you have fought we will make you a private, 1st class. If you and your troops reach Berlin then we will make you a corporal."

BRITISH CLERGY LOSES FIGHT ON SUNDAY MOVIES

Children Won't Be Banned at Shows.

BY JAMES SLOAN.

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Churchmen today fought a vigorous but losing battle against official regulations which permit young children to attend movies on Sundays.

When the London county council met to consider the renewal of theaters' Sunday licenses, church leaders blasted the issuance of permits which allow youths under 16 to attend. They pointed out that the ill effect of children's attendance at Sunday movies has been shown in the rapid increase in juvenile crimes. They said this was evidenced by the fact the number of children under 17 found guilty of indictable offenses had soared from 29,123 in 1938-'39 to 44,298 in 1940 and '41.

"Doesn't Tend to Uplift."

One pastor asserted, "Looking at films, such as sex and crime movies, doesn't tend to uplift children in their formative age. Their Sunday afternoon visits to the smoke laden atmosphere of cinemas has a most detrimental effect on the spiritual welfare of youth."

Another church authority pointed out that Sunday movies have caused a consistent decline in church school attendance, and said, "Many children leave Sunday school altogether and have become almost pagans." He cited figures to show one Methodist mission, which had 354 children on its Sunday school rolls when Sabbath day movies were first permitted several years ago, now has only about 40.

Prefer Movies to Church.

"We lost all children over 10 at once," he charged. "Only a few Sundays ago a boy ran up to our main entrance and was about to enter, mistaking it for a cinema, but another boy pulled him away with the warning, 'They only talk about God in there. You're in the wrong house.'"

Despite this opposition to Sunday films, the county council renewed theater licenses and attached no new conditions. Charity, however, will continue to share in the movies' Sunday receipts, which was one of the conditions laid down when Sunday films first were sanctioned.

BONOMI ATTEMPTS TO ORGANIZE NEW CABINET FOR ITALY

ROME, Italy, Nov. 30 (AP)—Crown Prince Umberto has entrusted to Ivanoe Bonomi, who resigned as premier, the task of forming another government. It was announced officially tonight. Bonomi later said he would consult with the leaders of the six political parties in an attempt to form a new cabinet.

"I do not know whether I will be able to form a cabinet," Bonomi said. "At present there are three parties against me and three are willing to come into a government headed by me."

Bonomi identified the parties supporting him as the Liberal Christian Democrat and the Labor Democrat with the Communist, Socialist, and Actionist against him.

HOLD EX-PRISON FUGITIVE AFTER TWO ARE SLAIN

Commerce, Okla., Nov. 30 (AP)—For 22 of his 53 years, said Sheriff Dee T. Watters, Jack Baldridge was a fugitive from the prison to which he was sentenced after he was convicted of killing his uncle.

Now, the sheriff said, he's in a cell again, and his wife, 28, and a neighbor, J. W. Williams, 50, are dead of gunshot wounds. Assistant County Atty. A. Clark told this story:

Baldridge returned home yesterday and found Mrs. Baldridge and Williams together. He said three Baldridge children saw the fight in which Mrs. Baldridge and Williams were shot to death with a pistol. Baldridge suffered a shotgun wound in his neck. No charges have been filed.

Twenty-nine years ago Baldridge was convicted of killing his uncle, John Howard. In 1917 he escaped from a prison camp and fled to Arkansas. Twenty-two years later Baldridge feared he was about to die. He confessed that he was an escaped convict and was brought back to Oklahoma. In March, 1942, Baldridge was granted a parole by Leon C. Phillips, then governor.

U.S. SHELLS ARCH OVER RHINE INTO SIEGFRIED FORTS

BY SEYMOUR KORMAN.

AT AN AMERICAN OUTPOST ON THE RHINE, Nov. 30.—From this artillery observation point, in an old warehouse, only a few hundred yards west of this storied river we must cross, the fire of our 105 mm. howitzers was being directed into Germany today. Shell, both incoming and outgoing, were arching over the building and the drum rattle of small arms fire from both sides of the river was never stilled.

The Rhine, about 800 feet wide in this vicinity, somewhere south of Strasbourg, was brawling in a current of eight to 10 miles an hour. On the eastern bank was visible a part of the Siegfried line—stout concrete pillboxes, set amid slender, young poplars, and farther back could be seen the silhouette of the Black Forest, some of the most beautiful wooded and hill terrain in the world, but now the emplacements for formidable German gun batteries.

Motorboats on River.

Lt. Budd Sturzl of Rhineland, Wis., was calling down howitzer fire on some enemy targets.

"Change direction," Sturzl spoke thru a field telephone to the gunners. "Swing—miles to the right."

He grinned as he explained that "some Jerries just came down the river in a motorboat. There's been a lot of those craft—power boats are all that can handle that rough river. Some of those Jerries got ashore and we want to stop the rest of them."

In a few minutes howitzer fire thundered at the eastern edge of the Rhine. We watched the dense smoke and far flung debris.

Now Sturzl and two of his men, Privates Robert Gehlhoof of Florence, Wis., and Louis Matuszewski, peering thru powerful glasses, spied some activity around a few of the Siegfried pillboxes.

"Lengthen" the range—yardage," Sturzl transmitted the order by telephone. "Swing to the left—miles. Give them some special delivery mail. Somebody has bought some bonds back home to pay for this load."

Minutes passed and then the howitzers smashed again. Again there were clouds of smoke and debris on German soil.

"Pillboxes Tough Stuff."

"Those pillboxes are damned tough stuff," remarked a lieutenant who was watching from another window, "and we are not certain whether our shells are knocking them out."

"Not knocking out all of them, anyway," called a sergeant. "Watch out! Here's some of the dirt." Some distance away on the German side could be viewed a tower, either of steel or blackened stone, which the enemy was using as one of his artillery observation posts.

And to the north, just dimly within our view, was the outline of a big stone bridge which leads from Strasbourg over the river to Kehl in the Reich. An accompanying railroad bridge and a smaller emergency span are south of the stone structure.

German troops are holding the Strasbourg river line in front of these bridges, with their western outpost line on the canals and railroad tracks. On an island between the Rhine and one of the canals known as the "Little Rhine" are five abandoned enemy guns.

CONVOY SHIPS COLLIDE; RESCUE 121 AMID FIRE

Navy Crews' 20 Hour Struggle Told.

BOATON, Mass., Nov. 30 (AP)—Flames shot 250 feet into the evening sky, fire raced thru two merchant ships in the convoy, but men of the United States navy were equal to the task of rescuing 121 out of 128 of the stricken crafts and of saving the vessels and most of their cargoes.

This tale of the sea was unfolded today after two destroyer escort ships that took part in that 20-hour battle put in here for repairs.

Secrecy still shrouded the time and the place where the crews of the two small navy ships fought all night and well into the next day after the British tanker Mount George McKnight, loaded with 1,500,000 gallons of 100 octane gasoline, and the American cargo ship Howard L. Gibson, collided and caught fire.

Two Ships Go to Rescue.

Comdr. Henry Mullins Jr., U. S. N., Marion, S. C., escort commander, ordered the U. S. S. Ahrens, on which he was serving, and the U. S. S. Holton to the rescue. The Ahrens was commanded by Lt. William J. Rogers Jr., U. S. N., formerly of Seattle, Wash. The Ahrens took aboard 51 out of 56 of the tanker's crew.

The Holton took on 70 of the Gibson's 72 men.

During the first part of the rescue work the sea was nearly calm, but as night wore on and daylight arrived the waves rose.

Ammunition on the merchantmen exploded.

There was the danger that more of the gasoline would let go. The fire on the tanker then was confined to two compartments. Officials theorized later that the roll of the sea allowed enough water aboard to prevent spread of the flames.

Deck Holes Cut for Hose.

Metalsmith Robert G. Beach, San Francisco, cut holes in the decks of the Gibson to make room for hose lines.

John Edward Ross, 18, seaman first class, Bedford, Mass., modestly admitted he was in the crew that fought the Gibson fire, but Lt. Milton Knight, U. S. N. R., Toledo, O., chimed in to say: "He worked all night in that smoke and he did one fine job."

Especially equipped forces under Lt. Donald B. Burke, U. S. N. R., Dunsuir, Cal., brought the tanker blaze under control.

Comdr. Mullins estimated that nine-tenths of the tanker's gasoline and three-fifths of the Gibson's assorted cargo were salvaged.

Gen. Eisenhower Finishes Tour of Holland Front

SOMEWHERE IN HOLLAND, Nov. 30 (AP)—Gen. Eisenhower left this sector today after a 24-hour inspection tour of the Canadian 1st army and British and Polish divisions of the British 2d army.

NO PRISONERS WILL BE SHOT AS HOSTAGES: IKE

Clarifies Proclamation of French General.

SUPREME HDQ. ALLIED EXPEDITIONARY FORCE, Nov. 30 (AP).—Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters issued an official statement today making it clear that whatever hostages might be shot at Strasbourg or anywhere else would not be prisoners of war.

The statement did not clarify, however, whether hostages other than prisoners of war might be put to death as a measure of prevention or retribution for any unlawful attacks on allied troops.

The statement was issued after Brig. Gen. Jacques Le Clerc, commander of the French 2d armored division, had announced at Strasbourg that five hostages would be shot for every French soldier killed by sniping after occupation of the French city.

Observe Geneva Convention. The supreme headquarters statement said:

"The allied expeditionary force is operating in conformity with the Geneva convention of 1929, and in particular with Article 2, which states 'measures of reprisal against prisoners of war are prohibited.'"

Subparagraph "D" of paragraph 358 of the rules of land warfare of the United States army, however, states that "hostages taken and held for the declared purpose of preventing unlawful acts may be punished or put to death."

Also supreme headquarters offered no elaboration, it was clear that there was no change in the hard-fisted policy toward the enemy.

German Set Pattern. The Germans set the pattern for shooting hostages in France in an effort to throttle the resistance movement. But those executed were neither allied troops nor formal prisoners of war.

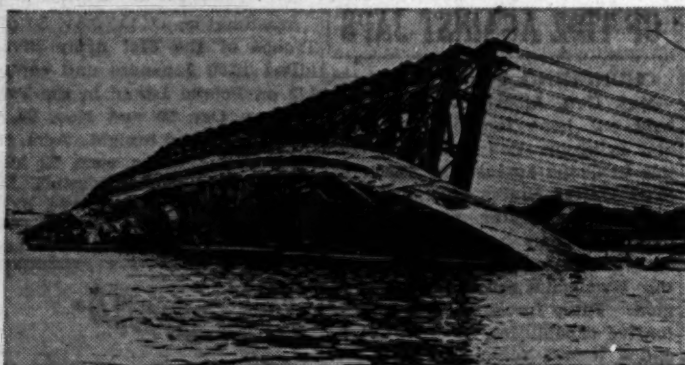

It seemed unlikely at supreme headquarters that the policy would come to a head in Strasbourg, however.

Le Clerc is now in process of being relieved of authority over the town if he already has not been relieved. His control once was perilous inasmuch as he had only armor in the city, but presumably infantry has now been in the city for some time.

C. S. DOUGHERTY TO PRESIDE OVER FELONY COURT

Assignment of Judge Charles S. Dougherty as presiding judge of the Felony court beginning next Monday was announced yesterday by Chief Justice Edward S. Scheffler when he issued court assignments for December. Judge Dougherty will replace Judge John Gutknecht, who will be assigned to a civil branch in the City hall. Assignments in outlying branches include Judge Edward P. Luczak, Grand Crossing and South Chicago; Judge John R. McSweeney, Stockyards and Wabash av.; Judge George B. Weiss, Shakespeare av.; Fillmore st. and Des Plaines st. and Judge N. J. Bonelli, Town Hall, Racine av. and Chicago av.

Battleship Oklahoma Raised

Almost three years after it sank during Japanese attack on Pearl Harbor, the battleship Oklahoma, covered with barnacles, has been brought to surface. Multiple cables attached to electric motors ashore hauled the 29,000 ton ship from harbor bottom.

WARDEN UNABLE TO LET CONVICT VISIT SICK WIFE

Joseph Ragen, warden at the Joliet state penitentiary, said yesterday he has received no request from any one to allow Joliet convict, an inmate, to come to Chicago to see his wife, Carmella, 33, a war worker, who is seriously ill in Walter Memorial hospital.

"If I did get a request I couldn't do anything about it," Warden Ragen added.

Mrs. Jablonski reported her husband last summer as an escaped convict and since then he has been returned to prison, where he is serving a life sentence for murder imposed in 1921. Jablonski had served 12 years of his sentence when he escaped in 1933 and was working in a war plant when he was arrested. Mrs. Jablonski has pleaded that her husband be allowed to see her.

Meanwhile Jablonski's attorney, Thomas A. Green, said he would seek a personal hearing before Gov. Green in Chicago.

SOCIALIST NEW CHIEF OF POLISH REGIME; HE SEEKS MOSCOW PACT

LONDON, Nov. 30 (AP).—Tomasz Arciszewski, 68, a Socialist, became prime minister of a new Polish government in London today with a pledge to "spare no effort" toward a lasting understanding between the Polish republic and Russia.

But he said this understanding should be "in accordance with the principles of international life fixed in the Atlantic charter, and with a view to safeguarding the most vital interests of the two neighboring countries."

The new cabinet was announced by President Wladyslaw Raczkiewicz. It included four Socialists, two National Democrats, and two Christian Democrats. The only member retained from the cabinet of the resigned Stanislaw Mikolajczyk was Lt. Gen. Marian Kukiel, minister of national defense. The new cabinet included no representatives of the Peasants, the strongest party in Poland.

GERMANS DRIVE YANKS FROM 2 ITALIAN HEIGHTS

ROME, Italy, Nov. 30 (AP).—German troops, lashing out in vicious counterattacks against Americans pressing on Bologna, have recaptured two important heights overlooking Nazi defense positions, the allied command disclosed today.

One blow behind strong artillery and mortar fire drove doughboys of the 5th army from Monte Castellaro, 9 1/2 miles southeast of Bologna. The strongest German blow was driven in farther west, 25 miles southwest of Bologna, and forced the Americans from recently won Monte Belvedere and the village of Corona.

SUBSCRIPTIONS IN FUND DRIVE TOTAL $12,570,891

Subscriptions totaling $12,570,891 were reported yesterday in the Community and War Fund campaign to raise $12,980,000. With only 3 per cent of the goal to go, Clarence B. Randall, general chairman, urged fund workers to complete their collections before the final report meeting on Dec. 15. "Chicago has performed admirably," Randall said. He added that would-be contributors who have been missed by solicitors should mail their contributions to the Community and War Fund, 111 W. Washington st.

JEEP, BOAT TRIP BRINGS RELEASE OF 53 CAPTIVES

NEAR ST. NAZAIRE, Nov. 29 (Delayed)—(AP).—A strange journey by jeep and torpedo boat during which an American Red Cross official sat blindfolded for more than two hours was the opening move in the exchange of 53 allied prisoners of war today. The prisoners included 19 Americans from the 83d infantry division.

Andrew Geron Hodges, senior field director for the United States 94th infantry division, hoisted a Red Cross flag above his jeep, and drove into German lines west of the town of Chauve. He was stopped by a German lieutenant who blindfolded him and drove the jeep to a point near the coast. There a torpedo boat took them to St. Nazaire. After a 10 minute walk thru the streets they entered a house. The blindfold was removed, and Hodges found himself looking at four German officers.

Three Not on List. The parley for prisoners began. They handed Hodges what was supposed to be a list of all allied prisoners in that sector. But Hodges, examining it, shook his head.

"They're not all here. Two Americans and an Englishman are missing."

"Are you sure?" Hodges said. "I know who they are, and they aren't on this list."

One German said: "Well, you won't have to worry about the Americans. They escaped last night."

"If they did escape I will know puts involved 61,000 persons."

about it when I get back."

The Germans agreed that was right, and then Hodges asked about the Englishman.

"What do you care about just one Englishman?" the Germans asked. "You don't even know his name."

Names British Captain.

"The hell I don't. He's Capt. Michael R. O. Foot. His father's a brigadier."

The German leaned forward. "I'm afraid we can't exchange Capt. Foot. He's given us a lot of trouble. He's escaped four times and been recaptured four times. He knew too much."

"In that case," Hodges replied, "I can only say that the exchange can't come off. We want them all, or none. My people wouldn't consider leaving a single allied prisoner here."

Finally the Germans said they would exchange Capt. Foot for five German majors with iron crosses.

"Then you admit that one British captain is the equal of five German majors?" Hodges said.

The ranking German officer banged his fist on the table, and cried, "Nein, nein."

After further parley, the Germans proposed three captains and three lieutenants for Foot. Hodges refused. In the end the Germans agreed to swap Foot for one German major or captain with a plain iron cross. The agreement then was sealed on a glass of brandy. Hodges was blindfolded and came back.

British Stoppages Cost 233,000 Working Days

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LONDON, Nov. 30.—Altho wage increases totaling $120,000 weekly were granted during the month to 200,000 workers, 225 work stoppages in October caused a loss of 233,000 working days, the labor ministry announced today. Work disputes involved 61,000 persons.

SAVE 1,400 FROM 2 U. S. CARRIERS SUNK BY JAPS

Admiral Identifies Four Escort Craft in Battle.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30 (AP).—Fourteen hundred men were rescued from the St. Lo and the Gambler Bay.

The losses on the St. Lo were low—we picked up 800 men. Rear Adm. C. A. E. Sprague said in a report on the engagement. Losses on the Gambler Bay were low, too, considering that she dropped back into the middle of the Jap fleet. Approximately 600 of her crew were saved. The complement of such ships has never been disclosed.

Identify Four Other Carriers.

Sprague's report identified for the first time the four other carriers in his force of six which had an escort of three destroyers and four destroyer escorts when it tangled with a Japanese force of four battleships, seven cruisers, and nine destroyers. The other carriers were the Kalinin Bay, the Fanshaw Bay, the White Plains, and the Kitkun Bay. All were damaged.

The report disclosed:

The American destroyers and destroyer escorts executed a daring torpedo attack against the enemy fleet without suffering any losses. "It was a very gallant attack," Sprague related. "One of the destroyers got a direct torpedo hit on a battleship. And not a single one of the destroyers or destroyer escorts was damaged during the torpedo attack. They all got back to us safely."

Fliers Make Dummy Runs.

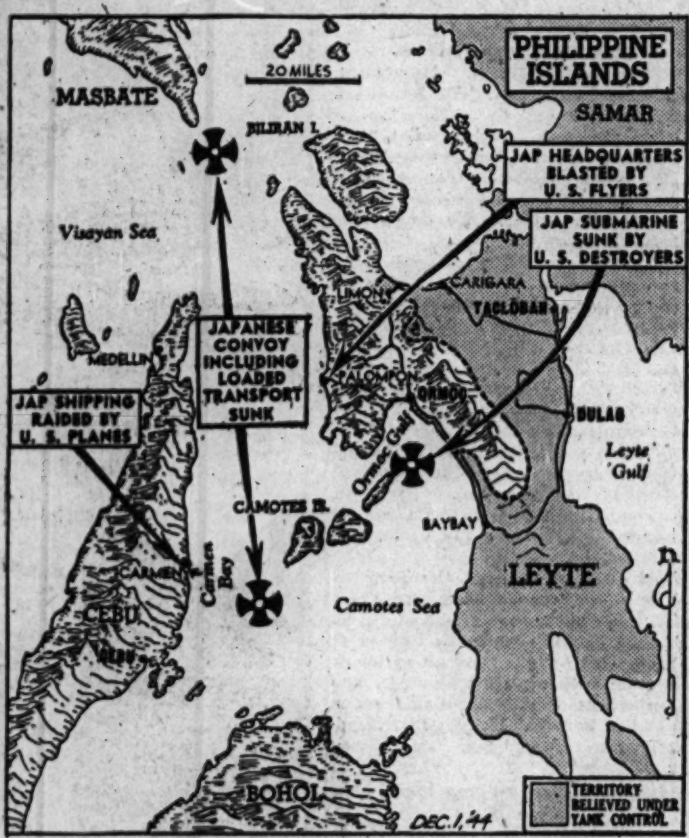

American airmen made "dummy runs" against the enemy after their torpedoes and ammunition were exhausted.

The carriers fought back with their 5 inch guns against the heavily armed enemy ships and morale was so high that at one point a battery officer said: "Just hold on a little longer, boys, we're getting 'em into 40 millimeter range."

The general outlines of the battle

Naval and Air Blows Against Japs

had been reported earlier in the navy's Nov. 17 war bulletin relating how the three pronged Japanese thrust, aimed to destroy Gen. MacArthur's transport and supply ships in Leyte gulf, met with disaster. The Japanese force engaged by Sprague's ships came thru San Bernardino strait and was the middle element of the three prongs. It had sunk one carrier, two destroyers, and a destroyer escort when the Japanese admiral suddenly turned and ran. The second carrier was sunk later by Japanese land based planes.

The navy advanced the supposition that the Japanese admiral must have learned of the destruction of the southern Japanese prong by American forces and realized his own force would be destroyed if he did not get back thru the strait. "At the time," Sprague recounted, "I didn't know why the Japs had turned tail. But upon analysis, I concluded that it was because they had suffered too much damage to continue the attack."

ONE BIG KETTLE SERVES YANKS AT LEYTE MESS

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LEYTE, Philippine Islands, Nov. 30.—On Leyte virtually every one eats out of one big kettle, general and G. I. alike. The food isn't any too tasty, but when a man gripes about that he is not going hungry. Almost everything comes out of cans. The most common is meat and beans or meat and vegetable hash, cabbage or string beans for a vegetable and dehydrated potatoes, all washed down by scalding hot coffee and topped off with peaches or pears. Unless the troops are isolated they have bread.

In extreme forward areas it is every man cooking for himself. Least fortunate are those issued K rations in which a meal is packed into a box so small it can be carried in the pocket.

Get Favorite 10 in 1 Ration.

Most of the forward troops on Leyte, however, have been lucky enough to get the soldiers' favorite ration. This is the 10-in-1, so-called because each case contains food for 10 men for one day. Opening the case is like unwrapping a picnic lunch, the variety of processed meats sometimes including chicken and turkey, jams and jellies, crackers, fruit juices, and the world's best bacon.

The less advanced units set up a general mess. The G. I.'s line up on one side and the officers on the other, all with mess kits, and the food comes out of the same pans. As the camp becomes settled the officers have their food served to them at a table, sometimes on plates, and the orderlies do their dish washing.

Some Luxuries Served.

In some units which have become fairly well established small supplies of foods which are luxuries on Leyte, fresh potatoes and real meat, may find their way into the officers' messes before there is enough for everybody. The higher the headquarters and the longer it is established, the wider is the difference between the way the officers and the enlisted men eat.

U. S. CHIEF IN CHINA SEES HOPE FOR TURN OF TIDE AGAINST JAPS

CHUNGKING, China, Nov. 30 (AP).—Maj. Gen. Albert C. Wedemeyer held out hope tonight that steps now in preparation would turn the tide in China against the Japanese. The United States commander in the China theater acknowledged that the enemy had sizeable south-east China forces concentrated in the Kwangsi-Kweichow border region. These forces have strong of fensive capabilities, he said, but he added it was reasonable to expect that remedial measures now being taken would halt the enemy.

Making no attempt to depreciate the gravity of China's military situation, Wedemeyer said the enemy was obtaining a corridor into French Indo-China and establishing good interior lines of communication after driving swiftly thru Kwangsi. In the path of that Japanese drive, a million misery-stricken refugees had abandoned their homes.

NO B-29s LOST IN THIRD RAID IN WEEK ON TOKYO

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30 (AP).—The third raid on Tokyo in a week by American B-29s was carried out thru night and clouds without losses due to enemy action, the army announced today.

The 20th air force bulletin on the pre-dawn attack reported industrial targets in Tokyo were bombed by use of precision instruments. Results were not observed because of cloud cover and the darkness. Anti-aircraft fire was "meager and inaccurate."

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30 (AP).—Troops of the 51st army division killed 1,300 Japanese and captured 142 on Peleliu Island in the Palau between Oct. 20 and Nov. 26, the navy announced tonight. Adm. Nimitz said our losses were 92 killed, 622 wounded, and 5 missing. Main points of resistance offered by the Japanese, remnants of the enemy garrison on the island, were caves.

CANADA LASHED ON FAILURE TO STRIKE AT JAPAN

Opposition Chief Stirs a Furor in Commons.

Keep Pledge: Quebec

QUEBEC, Nov. 30 (P).—The government of the French speaking province of Quebec today adopted an order in council asking the federal government "to respect and fulfill its solemn engagements and sacred pledges against conscription for overseas service." The order said the Quebec government reflected "the opinion of the immense majority" of the province's population, traditionally opposed to conscription in any form. A copy was sent to Prime Minister King.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.

(Chicago Tribune From Service.)
OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 30.—A furor was created in the house of commons today when R. B. Hanson, Progressive Conservative opposition leader, assailed Canada's failure to participate in the war against Japan. The house was engaged in debate preliminary to disposing of a vote of confidence on the regime of Prime Minister King.

"Canada was the first of the belligerent nations to declare war against Japan after the United States was attacked," Hanson said, "and to date it has done the least!"

Charges Mud Slinging.
Philip Picard, a Quebec Liberal, told the house that his people had been subjected during the war to a campaign of lying, whispering, and mud slinging. He offered a motion expressing disapproval of compulsory service overseas. He noted that Australia and New Zealand had not thought it necessary to draft men for foreign service.

"By that action, Canada would be deserting her boys overseas," yelled Howard Green, Progressive Conservative. A majority of the house's members pounded desks and shouted, "Hear! Hear!"

This phase of the current dispute over sending conscripted men to fight on foreign soil had been carefully avoided. The consensus of opinion had been that the end of the war against Germany would settle the problem of reinforcing Canadian troops abroad.

A fiery "Canada first" argument was delivered by P. J. A. Cardin, French-Canadian leader from Quebec. Cardin quit the Canadian cabinet in 1942 over the conscription issue.

"Why try to compete with the gigantic program of our great neighbor to the south?" he asked. "If there are gaps in the ranks of our volunteer army abroad, let us not send unwilling men to fill them up. 'Underneath the fine words of the brilliant leaders of the allied nations you will find then, all thinking of the interests of their country first. Canadians should think of the interests of Canada first.'"

Victory by Premier Expected.
Cardin advised citizens of Quebec to maintain freedom of speech, but he urged them to "remember that they are the citizens not only of Quebec but also of the rest of Canada."

Prime Minister King apparently was assured of an eventual vote of confidence as the special session resumed today. The vote may not come until next week. The expected victory for King will insure the dispatch of 16,000 "home defense" draftees to Europe.

From the west coast where home army draftee troops have been demonstrating in half a dozen camps, there were no reports of trouble today after five days of disorders.

Trails Husband to Trysts with Her Rival; He's Fined

Mrs. Evelyn Boynton, 33, of 9546 Avalon av., followed her husband, Allen, 31, three times this month as he walked from work to a grocery store, where he met a woman with whom he spent the night, the wife testified yesterday in Grand Crossing police court. She called police the third night, and Boynton was arrested at 1 a. m. Nov. 24 in the other woman's apartment at 8412 Rhodes av. Judge Matthew D. Hartigan fined Boynton $100 and costs for disorderly conduct.

CONGRESSIONAL JUNKET FACES STOP-LUCECRISIS

LONDON, Nov. 30 (P).—The publicity-shy house military committee shied off for France today with its male members wondering how they could combat Rep. Luce's (R., Conn.) penchant for hitting the headlines.

The 17 member delegation reached Paris this afternoon. [From Paris it was reported the congressmen had tramped around rehabilitated dock installations at Cherbourg. They are expected to visit another port today and then go on to Paris.]

Travel with Feud.
To the battlefields of the continent they carried a feud of their own. The smoldering resentment of several representatives about two episodes of their stay in Britain, both involving Mrs. Luce, threatened to disturb the serenity of their mission.

Mrs. Luce first upset the masculine equanimity in connection with a "gentlemen's agreement"—in the words of Acting Chairman Merritt (D., N. Y.)—to let a spokesman issue all the statements during the committee's inspection tour.

Army Denies Gag.
The comely Connecticut lawmaker was reported to have declared the army had ordered her not to talk. This the army denied. Then Mrs. Luce had a few words to say about the current cigaret shortage. She was against it.

But the annoyance within the committee turned to something near to open anger yesterday. She abandoned the committee temporarily for a short flight in a Fortress while her colleagues plodded thru the mud on an inspection tour of three air bases.

This cut the other committee members to the congressional quick. Merritt said he hadn't been consulted about Mrs. Luce's independent sortie.

Another Crisis.
Hours later, a correspondent's request to accompany the committee and cover its activities precipitated a near crisis. Supreme headquarters, which had been consulted earlier, had said okay provided the committee agreed.

"It's their party," said a SHAEF spokesman. "This places upon us the full responsibility for deciding whether you can go along with us," said one committeeman.

"It's buck passing," said another. "We'll have to have a committee meeting," said the first.

Into executive session went the committee—all except Mrs. Luce.

Her traveling companion, a WAC lieutenant colonel, said Mrs. Luce was tired. Attaches aboard the committee's special train said she was ill.

$432,162 RICHES OF DRAKE VICTIM CREATE PUZZLE

No One Knows How She Built Up Estate.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.
An interesting sidelight on the Drake murder case—still, after nearly a year, Chicago's No. 1 unsolved crime—was revealed yesterday with the filing of a tax return in County court in the estate of Mrs. Adele Born Williams, the murder victim.

Mrs. Williams, wife of Frank Starr Williams, a state department attaché, was fatally shot by a mysterious "woman in black" in her Drake hotel apartment last Jan. 19. Her daughter, Mrs. Patricia Goodbody, also was fired upon.

Leaves $432,162 Estate.
The tax return showed that Mrs. Williams left a gross estate of $432,162. It showed further that she apparently pyramided her fortune to that sum from the relatively low beginning of approximately $54,000. How she did it no one seems to know, but the interesting sidelight is that inherited whisky stock appears to have figured largely in her ninefold riches.

The tax return, filed by Atty. Gen. Barrett, disclosed that Mrs. Williams' uncle, Joseph S. Rosenfield, vice president of the Sunny Brook distillery, died Oct. 14, 1931, and left her a 16 per cent interest in his residuary estate; the gross estate amounted to $454,389.

Mrs. Williams' share included 1,021 shares of stock in the National Distilling company and the American Medicinal Spirits company, valued at $30,580. She also received cash from the conversion of Sunny Brook stock and other holdings, so that her total legacy amounted to $58,439, less $4,235 tax.

Received Gift in 1932.
Mrs. Williams received this sizable gift in October, 1932, when prohibition was on its way out. In these times whisky stocks held uncertain values, but the general trend was upward, and speculation was active.

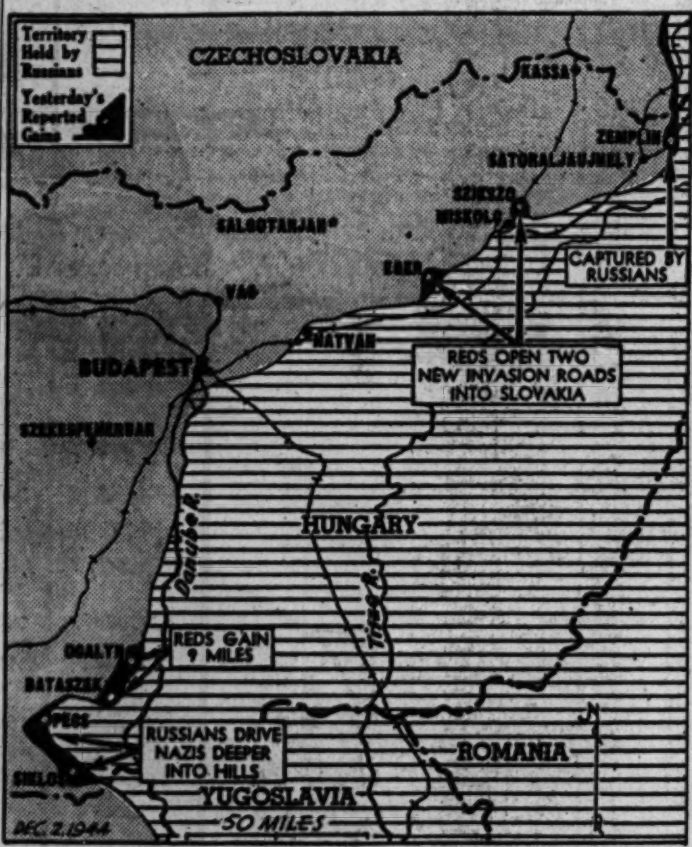

Whether she speculated with her whisky stock has never been ascertained, but if she did she was within legal rights, and her chances at that time for greatly increasing her wealth were favorable. In any event, in 1932 Mrs. Williams had about $58,000; in 1944, at her death, she had $432,162. How she did it her first husband, Edgar R. Born, does not know; nor apparently does her second husband, Williams. Equally in the dark are her daughters, Mrs. Goodbody and Miss Elizabeth Born.

Handled Own Investments.
However, everybody who knew Mrs. Williams described her as a competent business woman, shrewd in financial affairs, and one who handled her own investments.

A substantial part of Mrs. Williams' estate will go to the tax collectors. Illinois will get $9,218 and the federal government $89,500. Probate and other expenses amount to $17,318. The net estate totals $316,125. Of this $3,049 goes to Hattie Hirsch, $151,538 to Miss Born, and $161,538 to Mrs. Goodbody. Nothing is left to Mrs. Williams' first and second husbands.

Reds Drive On in Hungary

CALLS AMERICA POTENT POWER AT PEACE TABLE

Archbishop Stritch told the 49th annual banquet of the De La Salle Alumni association last night that the United States holds the power to dominate the historical decisions to be made at the peace table after this war. About 1,000 persons attended.

"It is impossible for the nations of the world to endure world wars at intervals of 25 years in the future," he said, predicting that decisions to prevent them are about to be made. He asserted that renewal of world-wide conflict would force all men "to forget there are such things as human rights."

Capt. E. C. Bain, commander of the United States submarine Fulton, which rescued survivors of the lost aircraft carrier Lexington, reviewed Japanese atrocity stories which emanated from New Guinea. He related American and Australian fighters were used as bayonet practice dummies and that evidence was found of Japanese cannibalism in the Finschhafen area.

RUSSIANS WIDEN DANUBE LINE TO OVER 100 MILES

LONDON, Dec. 1 (Friday).—(P).—Russian troops, expanding their new trans-Danube front south of Budapest to more than 100 miles, yesterday swept 9 miles northward along the west bank of the river and captured 50 more localities, Moscow announced last night.

In the mountains northeast of the besieged Hungarian capital the 2d Ukrainian army blasted open two invasion routes leading into southern Slovakia by capturing the axis strongholds of Eger and Szekes, Premier-Marshall Stalin announced in a special order of the day. He ordered a Moscow salute of 12 salvos from 124 guns.

These troops also cut the Miskolc-Kassa (Kosice) highway and railway connecting the axis fronts in north-eastern Hungary and Slovakia and further outflanked Miskolc by capturing Arnot, less than 3 miles northeast.

The German high command was reported to have drawn reinforcements from as far away as Italy in an attempt to halt the 3d Ukrainian army. Its spearheads in southwestern Hungary have pushed thru Pecs, 25 miles west of the Danube, to reach a point only about 100 miles from the Austrian frontier.

Striking north of captured Batazsek, one soviet column took Ocseny, on the Danube, 78 miles south of Budapest.

The seizure of Eger, a town of 30,000 known as the "Hungarian Rome" because of its numerous ecclesiastical buildings, put the Russians within 25 miles of the Slovakian frontier. They were driving thru a valley between the Matra and Bukk mountains.

FORMER WIFE OF LEONARDE KEELER KILLED

Mrs. Katherine Applegate Dussaq, 38, former wife of Leonarde Keeler, crime detection expert, and later a member of the Women Auxiliary Service Pilots (WASP), was killed Sunday in an airplane crash near Newcastle, O., the army has notified her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Applegate of Walla Walla, Wash.

Relatives said they had been informed the crash occurred as she was flying blind and attempted a landing after the plane's fuel was exhausted.

Mrs. Dussaq was associated for several years with Keeler in the crime laboratory at Northwestern university and was a handwriting expert. She was married in December, 1942, to Lt. Rene Dussaq, an Argentinean and former deep sea diver, now attached to a parachute and ski unit in the army. They had lived in Washington, D. C., until both entered service.

Theft in 6 Reels

ESTHER WILLIAMS.

New York, Nov. 30 (P).—Fascination for Esther Williams, motion picture star and swimmer, led Allen Artenchuck, 25, to steal six reels of "Bathing Beauty."

He told Kings county Judge Samuel S. Leibowitz yesterday he had taken the films from a theater because:

"Esther Williams is the most gorgeous creature I have ever seen. Since I could not have her I had to have my mind to get the film."

The judge accepted a guilty plea to petty larceny and committed Artenchuck to Kings County hospital for observation.

EX-FLYING TIGER SEIZED AS THIEF OF INDIAN GEMS

New York, Nov. 30 (Special).—Dean Ivan Lamb, 58, international soldier of fortune and formerly one of Chennault's Flying Tigers in Burma, was arrested today on charges of stealing $38,000 in gems entrusted to him for return to a jeweler in India. He was indicted Tuesday on grand larceny charges.

The district attorney's office said that Ganesh Lal of Agra, India, became friendly with Lamb in India last year and authorized him to pick up jewels which Lal had permitted to be used as an exhibit at the Kende galleries in Gimbel's department store here and return with them to India.

Lamb obtained the gems in June, 1943, but later informed the Indian jeweler's representative here that they were destroyed when fire burned the home of his cousin in Lodi, N. Y., where he said he had sent the jewels for safekeeping. His cousin said she never received the jewelry.

The defendant recently was retired as a major in the army intelligence corps. He has been in turn a miner, rancher, salesman, soldier, and author.

GEN. DE GAULLE IN RUSSIA; PLAN NEW ALLIANCE

LONDON, Dec. 1 (Friday).—Gen. De Gaulle has arrived in Russia, the Moscow radio announced tonight, where he will discuss with Premier Stalin the fate of Germany after the war and a new soviet-French pact. The Moscow broadcast said the French provisional leader and his party arrived by plane at Baku Monday and were greeted by soviet officials and a guard of honor. Yesterday De Gaulle went to Stalin-grad. He continued toward Moscow by rail.

The subjects of collective security, regional pacts in Europe, and the status of the Rhineland and western Germany also were expected to be among important discussions between the French and Russian leaders. There have been public demands in France for moving the nation's boundaries to the Rhine.

JUDGE'S DEATH ENDS 7 MONTH SEDITION TRIAL

Resumption of Big Case Is Problematical.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—With the death today of Justice Edward C. Elcher, the turbulent mass sedition trial of 26 defendants, over which he had presided for seven months, came to a sudden end. Whether it ever will be resumed is problematical.

Justice Elcher.

When court convened Justice James M. Proctor announced the death of Justice Elcher, who had been found dead in bed of a heart attack, and adjourned the trial till Dec. 7, at which time the disposition of the current proceedings will be determined.

O. John Rogge, chief government prosecutor, declined comment. According to government counsel, the trial could proceed with another judge presiding provided the government and the defendants agreed to the procedure. If some of the defendants agreed, the trial could go on. Those who disagreed could be severed from the proceedings.

Few Defendants in Court.
On the other hand the second Circuit Court of Appeals held in the Freeman case in 1915 that justice requires trial of accused by the same judge and same jury and that neither the prosecution nor the defendants can agree to the substitution of a judge or jurors.

Few of the defendants were in court, Justice Elcher having permitted them to absent themselves from the long drawn out trial. Most of them said they would not agree to continuation of the trial under another judge.

"The trial has been in progress for more than seven months and the government has not proved a single one of its allegations," said Albert Dilling, counsel for his former wife, Elizabeth Dilling of Chicago. "There is no good reason for dragging out this political farce any longer."

Were Certain of Acquittal.
"We regret the death of Justice Elcher on his own account and our own," said Lawrence Dennis, one of the defendants who is acting as his HARVEY EARL JR.

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 30 (P).—More concerned over his bandages than about the injuries he suffered in the explosion of a cartridge, little five year old Harvey Earl Jr. tonight is still unaware that he has lost his left hand. Harvey and his brother were playing with an old cartridge and he held a match to it. His hand was shattered when the powder exploded.

own attorney. "We feel that we would have been sure of acquittal." "And the seven months' testimony has exonerated Mr. Dennis of all the charges," chimed in Mrs. Dennis.

If there should be no agreement to proceed with another judge, a mistrial would be declared and the jury discharged. Then it would be up to the department of justice to decide whether to bring the defendants to trial again on the present indictments for seditious conspiracy. The case might be dropped entirely, for the administration has been under fire for three years in and out of congress for hounding an aggregation of obscure anti-war pamphleteers and crackpot anti-Semites, all of them foes of communism.

Also the difficulties of affording each defendant a fair trial in a mass prosecution have cast doubt on the propriety of the course pursued by the government. Justice Elcher was accustomed to shut off defense arguments and overrule defense objections en masse, leaving counsel vainly protesting disregard of defendants' rights and foreshadowing appeals of voluminous proportions.

Trial Began April 17.
The current sedition trial began April 17 last, since which time the government has been presenting witnesses and documents to prove that the defendants conspired to undermine the morale of the army and navy and set up a Nazi form of government in the United States. Rogge thought he could conclude the presentation of the government case about next April or May. Unless the court at that time should direct a verdict for the accused, the defense would consume from three to six months longer. The prospect, therefore, was a trial lasting about a year and a half, and that will be the prospect if a retrial should be ordered. The cost of the proceedings already exceeds $100,000.

The sedition case had its genesis in a collaboration of the department of justice and Eugene Meyer's Washington Post to smear pre-war isolationist members of congress whose speeches had been circulated by the anti-war and anti-Semitic propagandists. A Post reporter was used to entice obscure pamphleteers to send him their literature so as to provide an overt act for indictment and trial in the District of Columbia instead of their home communities.

The defendants fell into two classes. Some were Nazi agents, the others were small time pamphleteers and crackpots who had been propagandizing anti-communism and anti-Semitism for years before the war. Seven of the defendants had been previously convicted in espionage and other cases and appeared in court under prison guard.

Elcher from Iowa.
Justice Elcher was 65 years old. He was born in Noble, Ia. He practiced law in Washington, Ia., from 1918 to 1933 when he came to Washington, having been elected to congress in the Roosevelt landslide of 1932. In 1938 he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for senator against Sen. Gillette, whom Mr. Roosevelt sought to purge for failure to support the New Deal 100 per cent.

Defeated in the primary, Mr. Elcher was rewarded by the President with appointment to the securities and exchange commission, of which he became chairman in 1941, also by Presidential appointment. After an attempt to appoint him to the 8th Circuit Court of Appeals had been blocked by Gillette, Elcher was appointed to the District of Columbia District court.

Justice Elcher is survived by his widow and a daughter, Elizabeth Culligan. The funeral service will be held here Saturday. Burial will be at Washington, Ia.

AIR CONFERENCE NEARING WINDUP WITH FIVE PACTS

No Nation Is Obligated to Sign All of Them.

BY FRANK HUGHES.

An American spokesman said yesterday that he hoped to see the international civil aviation conference wind up tomorrow or Sunday with five completed documents which, taken together, would produce a world aviation organization with very limited powers, technical standards for international air lines, and the guarantee of complete freedom to fly and to haul air traffic.

Because there are five documents and because no nation is obligated to sign all of them, how far the freedom of the air would extend or how global the world organization would be was anybody's guess.

British Fight Full Freedom.

There are 54 nations represented at the conference in the Stevens hotel, 52 of them with voting power. Great Britain and some of her commonwealth nations are opposed strongly to complete freedom of the air, and even the most confirmed optimist does not expect them to sign any document granting this.

The five documents the American said he hoped to see produced are: 1. A permanent world aviation pact containing an air navigation section with technical standard annexes, the machinery for setting up a world aviation authority, council and secretariat, and a noncontroversial section on air transport. 2. An "interim" agreement, covering these same points, to operate from the end of the war until the time when the permanent document is ratified and effective.

Protocols on Freedom.

3. A protocol (addition) to document No. 1 which would pledge each nation signing it to grant complete freedom of the air to all other nations, with the provision that reservations might be taken to the privilege of picking up passengers and freight by a foreign air line transportation to another country. 4. A protocol to document No. 2 granting the same freedoms and right of reservation for the interim. 5. A standard form of bilateral agreement for use when one nation wants to negotiate air rights with another outside the provisions of the international organization.

Some delegations expressed strong opposition to a windup of this conference on a five document basis. Some spokesmen said the leeway allowed in signing any or all of these papers would leave confusion. England is known to favor placing the freedom of the air dispute, which involves the two protocols the Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 29 (P).—The big black and white toy panda excited yellow haired Roy (Sonny) Hess tonight, but its significance troubled his audience.

Sonny, for whom Christmas also would be his second birthday, didn't know that his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Hess, had been told he probably would not be present Dec. 25 because of an incurable kidney disease. He was stricken in July.

The panda, gift of his father's co-workers in a local war plant, was the prelude to Sonny's Christmas celebration, to include a trimmed tree, a party and a visit from Santa Claus on Sunday.

United States wants to put up for signature into the hands of an interim committee with the hope that a stand agreeable to everybody eventually can be drawn up.

FIVE OF IKE'S G.I.'S ARRIVE TODAY TO PLEAD FOR GUNS

BY CHARLES BALLENGER.

Five of the 27 enlisted men who were flown back from Europe a few days ago to tell war workers how ammunition and other supplies had to be rationed to front line soldiers because of severe shortages will arrive in Chicago this morning.

Sent as special emissaries from Gen. Eisenhower, the 27 soldiers were taken directly from their foxholes in the European battlefield and brought back to emphasize the need for increased production. Before they left Gen. Eisenhower told the group to "go home and tell the workers just what you have been up against."

Chicago Is First Stop.

After their arrival in the United States the soldiers were divided into five groups to tour through the country visiting war plants. Because of the severe man power problems in this vital production area, Chicago was chosen for the first stop. The five soldiers, several of whom have been overseas more than two years, will meet with Mayor Kelly at 11 a. m. today and then will confer with army and civilian production experts. A press conference will follow.

Downstate Trip Planned. During the next few days the group will visit several plants in the Chicago area. They then will go to other cities downstate where increased production has been demanded by the army and navy.

Among the requests made by Gen. Eisenhower was a plea for a tremendous increase in light and heavy tank production. Seven Chicago plants producing tank parts have had their production schedules seriously impaired because of labor shortages. All seven are classified as "must" plants and have special priorities to hire new labor.

The plants and their labor needs are: The Burnside Steel Foundries, 1300 E. 92d st., three molders, five process men, three grinders, and five unskilled laborers; the Buda company, 154th st. and Commercial av., Harvey, 156 skilled and unskilled men workers, and 33 women for plant and office work.

Needs 62 Skilled Workers. The Dryden Rubber company, 1014 S. Kildare av., 62 skilled men and women; Chicago Rivet Machine company, 9200 W. Jackson bldg., Bellwood, three mechanics and three metal benders; Acme Steel company, Riverdale, 45 common laborers, 106 skilled laborers; Conlon corporation, 1086 S. 52d av., Cicero, 47 machine operators and inspectors, and the Chicago Vitreous Enamel Products company, 1401 S. 55th st., 17 grinders and inspectors and six laborers.

Mayor to Take Part in Airlines' Ceremony

Mayor Kelly this afternoon will cut a ribbon at the door of the Northwest Airlines' new ticket office at 300 S. Michigan av., which will replace the company's office at 33 E. Monroe st. Croll Hunter, president and general manager of the lines, and James J. Fauteux, Chicago district traffic manager, will take part in the ceremony. The company plans post-war routes to Alaska, Asia, the Orient, the Philippine Islands, and Honolulu.

F.D.R.'S VICTORY LAID TO SHIFT OF U.S. PAY ROLLERS

Total of Jobholders Tops
His Majority in 9 States.

BY WALTER TROHAN.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—A survey of the vote in 11 states, regarded as doubtful before the Presidential election of Nov. 7, showed today that Gov. Dewey, Republican candidate, was defeated largely by federal employees who were shifted into the crucial states since the 1940 campaign.

In nine of 11 states (as shown in the table in an adjoining column) having a total of 191 electoral votes, the majority of President Roosevelt was less than the number of resident federal employees eligible to vote in those states. Families of these workers also made a heavy contribution to New Deal votes. Each family possibly gave one or two additional votes to the President.

Make Victory Possible.
In five of the 11 states, the increase of federal workers was greater than the Roosevelt majority. In two of the states the Roosevelt majority and the number of resident federal employees were so nearly equal as to make it clear that their voting strength accounted for the Roosevelt majority.

If the federal employees in these states had been kept in the District of Columbia and their vote had been distributed among the states from which they came, Dewey might have carried the 11 states in question, according to political observers.

The 191 electoral votes of these states, together with the 99 Dewey received would have given him 290 electoral votes, a comfortable balance over the 266 necessary for election.

Employees Increase 116 Per Cent.
The average percentage of increase of federal workers in the 11 states was 116 per cent. This increase was not reflected in the solid south.

Since the WPA was abandoned by congress, numerous federal agencies were moved to Philadelphia, Pa.; Chicago, New York, Boston, Mass.; Detroit, Mich.; St. Louis, Mo.; and Baltimore, Md., where they swelled the Democratic vote.

While political analysts have generally attributed the election of Mr. Roosevelt to a fourth term to the war and the activities of Sidney Hillman, Earl Browder, Mayor Kelly, Boss Hague, Boss Flynn and their followers, they agreed a shift of federal workers might have changed the picture.

The workers also contributed heavily to the victory of many Democrats in congress. For this reason it is considered unlikely that Democrats in congress will be anxious to cut the federal pay roll.

HIT AND RUN CAR KILLS MOTHER ON WAY TO WORSHIP

On her way to an early synagog service, Mrs. Anna Bloom, 70, of 1138 S. Marshfield av., the mother of eight children, was killed yesterday when she was struck by the automobile of a hit and run driver in front of 1657 Roosevelt rd. Police were seeking the driver of a 1936 model dark sedan.

Henry Schuck, 30, of 2224 Washington blvd. died in Hinsdale sanitarium of injuries suffered Sunday when his car was struck by a truck driven by Garnett Suddeth, 30, of Shabbona, De Kalb county, on a viaduct near Lisle.

There were 51 deaths from auto accidents in Cook county in November, 30 in the city, and 21 in the suburbs, Coroner A. L. Brodie reported yesterday. This is two deaths less than for November last year. Thus far this year there have been 492 deaths in the city and suburbs. During 1943 a total of 517 died as the result of auto mishaps. The highest number of deaths since 1940 took place in 1941, when 978 fatalities were reported.

49 END STEEL STRIKES; LOSS IS 22,000 TONS

Production of superior steel used in the manufacture of such necessities as armor piercing shells and aircraft instruments was resumed at the Carnegie-Illinois corporation's South Chicago plant yesterday after a one day strike by 35 workers. The strike, in protest against the assignment to an electric furnace of other workers, resulted in the loss of production of 22,000 tons of the fine steel, company officials disclosed.

Another Strike Settled.

Another strike by 14 cranimen in another branch of the plant came to an end at 5 p. m. The strike was started Sunday in protest against the company's refusal to approve some transfers. The strike in this section caused the loss in production of 5,388 tons of plate and 16,370 tons of steel slab.

Two Dodge Plant Strikes.

The production of three types of steel lost because of the strikes totaled more than 22,000 tons. Both groups of strikers are members of the United Steel Workers [CIO].

Two strikes were started in different departments of the huge Dodge-Chicago plant, where engines for B-29 Super Fortress bombers are being built. In the machining department 209 workers struck in protest against the transfer of a foreman, the company said. Yesterday afternoon 51 of 54 employees on the first shift in the tool grinding department struck, the company said, after a grinder had been dismissed for loading after repeated warnings. The grinders are members of the United Auto Workers' union [CIO].

Production of vital war materials was stopped yesterday at the Ramapo Ajax division of the American Brake Shoe company, 2503 Blue Island av., when more than 100 employees struck in protest over the refusal of the war labor board to approve a 5% cent hourly wage increase. Nearly 175 employees are affected. The company manufactures railroad supplies for lend-lease, domestic railroads, and the army. The strikers are members of the Independent Employees' association.

JOB FOR VETS PLEGGED BY AFL AS PARLEY ENDS

BY GEORGE HARTMANN.
(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

New Orleans, La., Nov. 30.—Pledges to union members who are in the fighting forces that their jobs will be waiting for them when they return and that everything possible will be done for their rehabilitation were given today by President William Green and other American Federation of Labor officers before the closing session of the 64th annual convention of the federation.

The last order of business was the reelection of Green to serve his 21st term as federation president. George Meany was reelected secretary-treasurer and the 13 vice presidents who make up the AFL's council also were returned to office.

The vice presidents, in order, are: William L. Hutchison, carpenters; Matthew Woll, photo engravers; Joseph N. Weber, musicians; G. M. Bugniet, electrical workers; George M. Harrison, railway clerks; Daniel J. Tobin, teamsters; Harry Bates, brick layers; W. D. Mahole, street railway employees; Felix H. Knight, railway car men; Edward Flore, hotel and restaurant workers; Harvey W. Brown, machinists; W. C. Birthright, barbers, and W. C. Doherty, letter carriers.

Chicago Picked for 1945.

The last order of business was against Negro delegates in hotels here, A. Philip Randolph, Negro president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, argued against Louisville, Ky., as the next AFL convention city in October, 1945. Chicago was selected after the Minneapolis Minn. nomination was withdrawn.

It will be the first time in 49 years that an AFL convention has been held in Chicago.

In his acceptance speech Green indicated that John L. Lewis and his United Mine Workers would be back in the AFL within a year when he said: "Some who left us will be back by our next convention."

Vet Benefits Retained.

Green disclosed that a large majority of the AFL unions have voted to continue the veterans in good standing in their locals. This has resulted in the continuance of their insurance benefits. In addition many unions have opened their membership books to honorably discharged soldiers who were not members of any union.

The convention also went on record as being opposed to any hasty plan for universal military conscription.

A resolution was adopted asking for the abrogation of the British policy that has closed the gates of Palestine to Jewish immigrants.

PLANE CARRIES 100 TRIBUNES TO MEXICO TODAY

One hundred copies of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE are flying to Mexico City today as part of the cargo on the inaugural flight of daily air cargo service by Braniff Airways from Chicago to the Mexican capital.

The newspapers, printed at midnight, were placed on board the airliner at 1 a. m. at Chicago airport. At noon they will be in Laredo, Tex., where the cargo will be transferred to a plane of the Compania Mexicana de Aviacion, the Mexican subsidiary of Pan-American Airways. This plane is due in Mexico City at 4:15 p. m.

Members of the American colony in that city have been notified that free copies of THE TRIBUNE will be available at 5 p. m. today at the Braniff office.

HOUSE TO PROBE GALLUP POLL'S ELECTION ROLE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—Chairman Anderson [D., N.M.] of the house campaign expenditures committee, announced today the group will investigate the Gallup poll in an effort to determine what influence, if any, it had on the recent election.

He said the committee was making no charges, but was interested in "reports" that attempts were made by the Gallup poll to "influence the election." The committee will visit the poll's headquarters in Princeton, N. J., next week, Anderson said. He said Dr. George Gallup, head of the organization, told the committee he would welcome any inquiry.

NEW DEAL ASKS END OF BAN ON FOREIGN LOANS

Acheson Urges Repeal of Johnson Act.

10 Billion Sought

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30 (P.)—Allied governments are proposing to buy at least 10 billion dollars' worth of supplies in the United States for post-war reconstruction. It was reported tonight by administration officials.

This figure was described as a conservative estimate of what Britain, Russia, France, and the other allied nations would like to obtain in the years immediately after the war, provided financing can be arranged.

[Chicago Tribune From Service.]—The state department today urged congress to repeal the Johnson act, which bans private loans to Britain and other nations that defaulted on their World War I debts, as Prime Minister Churchill announced in London that lend-lease aid to Britain will be cut in half in 1945.

On Capitol Hill Assistant Secretary of State Dean Acheson disclosed that several requests for loans have been received from foreign governments. He urged expansion of the credit facilities of the export-import bank to handle the requests.

Churchill reported to the house of commons on a new lend-lease arrangement worked out in conference in Washington between John F. Kennedy, head of a British delegation, and state and treasury department officials.

Plan 5 Billion Lend-Lease.
Under the proposed plan, the United Kingdom will get 5 billion 600 million dollars of lend-lease goods in 1945, or about half of the 1944 total. Iron and steel exports to Britain also would be cut in half.

The announcement was hailed in administration circles as silencing rumors that this country was about to continue lend-lease after the war to help Britain restore its pre-war foreign trade and domestic economy.

It had been known for weeks, however, that the administration had shifted from a continuance of lend-lease to efforts to transfer post-war credits of billions of dollars to England and other nations to restore pre-war economy.

Suggest Emphasis on Loans.
The British representatives here had asked originally for 6 1/2 billion dollars of post-war lend-lease, slightly more than half of which was to be nonmilitary and open for resale. Later it was suggested that lend-lease be soft pedaled and the emphasis be placed on loans.

It was not made clear in the London announcement whether lend-lease would be continued to Britain thru 1945 even tho the war should end during the year. In his 17th quarterly report to congress on lend-lease last week, President Roosevelt said the lend-lease program should end with the war. He did not say that it must end with the close of the war, nor did he say whether it should end with the end of the war in Europe or continue until the end of the war in the Pacific.

The President did say that allied partnership must be continued and must be strengthened after the war, which was interpreted as holding out the prospect of credits to foreign nations for European trade revival and rehabilitation.

Assails Johnson Act.
In his appearance before the house post-war economic committee, Acheson assailed the Johnson act as "a barrier to American participation in the rehabilitation of foreign trade" and asserted that "conditions have changed greatly since the act was adopted, but it still stands in the way of urgently needed loans to the principal European governments."

Acheson did not give any figure for his recommended expansion of the export-import bank. At present its credit maximum is 700 millions, but it has only 200 millions available for new operations. Foreign credits of upwards to 13 billions to England, France, Russia, and other European nations are being discussed.

Tells of Threats

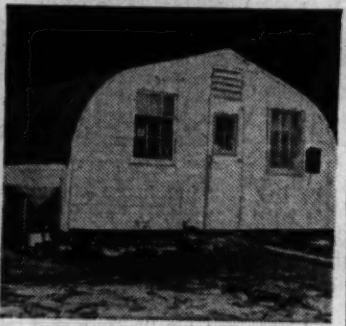

Genoa, Ill., Nov. 30 (Special).—A mother of eight children who works in a war plant told a coroner's jury today that her 13 year old son fatally shot his intoxicated father late yesterday when the father threatened to kill her and a 6 year old daughter, Charlene, at their home near here.

The woman is Jennie Kellogg, 39, whose husband, Raymond, also 39, died last night in County hospital in Sycamore of a bullet wound in the head inflicted by the son, Franklin. After hearing Mrs. Kellogg, another son, Ronald, 14, and other witnesses, the jury decided that Franklin had killed his father, a civilian electrician at Camp Grant, in "defense of his mother's life."

Prosecutor Ross Millett said he would not ask the De Kalb county grand jury to return a murder indictment or a true bill against the boy when it meets Monday before Judge Harry W. McEwen.

Mother of Three Held on Extortion Charges

Mrs. Marie Bambule, 40, of 2430 St. Louis av., was held in bond of $500 yesterday by United States Commissioner Edwin K. Walker pending a hearing Dec. 13 on charges that she sent extortion letters to Miss Xenia Welcher, 40, who lives in the apartment above hers. In one of the letters, Miss Welcher was directed to put $200 in a garage can on the first floor of the building. Mrs. Bambule, the mother of three children, denied the charge.

BLASTS AND FIRE WRECK BUILDING AND 10 TRUCKS

A 4-11 alarm yesterday sent scores of fire fighting units to the Bee-Mac Transport company, 427 E. Pershing rd., where a series of explosions and fire destroyed 10 trucks and damaged the one story brick building. Chief Fire Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney, who estimated the damage at $50,000, said the fire started after six explosions were heard by employees. Eight trucks parked in a lot outside the building and two inside were destroyed.

Lt. John McGuire of squad 3 was burned on the neck when a blazing board struck him as the roof fell. He was taken to Chicago Memorial hospital.

REVEAL U.S. AID FOR BRITISH BID TO REGAIN TRADE

LONDON, Nov. 30 (P.)—American aid for Britain's bid to recover her faltering, war sacrificed export trade was disclosed by Prime Minister Churchill today together with the announcement that lend-lease aid to the island empire will be cut in half when Germany falls.

Jubilantly announcing an Anglo-American economic arrangement on the future of lend-lease, apparently designed to help Britain pull out of its financial slump, the prime minister made these points:

1. A new program will be inaugurated next year to permit Britain to export articles from American imported raw materials.

2. Britain will pay cash for that material.

3. Defeat of Germany would permit Britain—along with the United States—to release some of its manpower for production of civilian goods.

4. Britain anticipates American aid in its rehousing program, not only in raw material but in finished houses.

Gave Up Export Trade.
In a statement which commons has been anxiously awaiting, Churchill declared that Britain gave up its export trade "in the extremity of our emergency," but added that it was a sacrifice "without which we cannot live in the future."

Winning the plaudits of the house with his detailed statement on this joint Anglo-American agreement, just two days after Britain issued a white paper to tell the world of its vast, war necessitated financial sacrifices, the premier said:

"The end of the war with Germany will make possible large reductions in some of our requirements. We expect our needs will be met by a program at a rate not much more than half of what we have been receiving in 1944."

Cut Aid After Nazi Defeat.

"The defeat of Germany," he said, "will make possible reductions in the lend-lease program, and in certain fields we have been able to anticipate those changes and to work on the basis of the new program from the beginning of 1945."

"Thus from that date we shall no longer get shipments to this country, under lend-lease, of any articles for civilian manufacture for civilian use which enter into export trade nor of many raw and semi-fabricated materials such as iron and steel and some nonferrous metals."

[Under the terms of the lend-lease white paper drafted in September, 1944, Britain agreed it would not export lend-lease articles, nor articles manufactured from lend-lease material.]

Jap War Emphasized.

"Consequently," said Churchill, "we shall then be free to export a wide array of goods made from those materials. Naturally we have not used in export and do not propose to use any critically scarce materials except where the export is essential to the effective prosecution of the war."

This apparently left the door open for Britain to export goods made from American lend-lease materials to allied countries engaged in the war against Germany and Japan.

But, repeatedly, he emphasized that—even after Germany's defeat—Britain's exports will be subjected to "those inevitable limitations dictated by the needs of the war against Japan."

Jury to Try Policeman Is Near Completion

Selection of a jury is expected to be completed today for the trial of John F. McNulty, suspended policeman, on a charge of murder for the fatal shooting of John Modoff, owner of a tavern at 4233 Lake Park av., last May 24. Eight jurors were chosen yesterday before Chief Justice Harold G. Ward in Criminal court.

SECURITY TAX FREEZE VOTED BY HOUSE GROUP

[Chicago Tribune From Service.]
Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—The house ways and means committee voted today to freeze the social security pay roll tax for 1945 at the present rate of 1 per cent each for employers and employees.

The vote, which was 17 to 7, came in the face of demands from the administration that the tax be doubled to 2 per cent each for workers and employers, starting Jan. 1.

Under present law, the levy would automatically be doubled at that time, but congressmen of both parties have contended the boost is unnecessary in view of the huge old age pension reserve already accumulated by the 1 per cent tax.

The 17 committee members voting for the freeze included nine Republicans and eight democrats. All seven votes against it were by Democrats.

Congressional leaders predicted the freeze will be easily passed by congress, probably within the next week or two, but said it is likely the measure will be vetoed by President Roosevelt. Whether each house could muster the two-thirds majority necessary to override such a veto is problematical, they said.

WOMAN REPORTS REVOLVER THEFT.
Mrs. John F. McCarthy, 7838 Loomis st., told police yesterday that a .38 caliber blue steel revolver was missing from her home.

ELLIOTT'S NEXT WIFE WANTS TO MEET 'IN-LAWS'

I'm Democrat, She Says;
He Buys Rings.

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 30 (Special).—Film Actress Faye Emerson, whose engagement to become Col. Elliott Roosevelt's third wife was disclosed yesterday, said in an interview today she is looking forward to meeting her future father and mother-in-law, President and Mrs. Roosevelt, on her honeymoon.

"I'm a loyal Democrat, you know," she explained.

The blonde actress conceded that it was "love at first sight" between her and the President's second son, but took occasion to deny that their romance began with a meeting in a New York night club.

Meet at Dinner Party.
"We first met at a little dinner party in Beverly Hills about 14 months ago," she asserted. "We saw quite a lot of each other until Elliott went overseas. We wrote each other and I saw him in New York whenever he was in the country."

Miss Emerson, when asked when Elliott had proposed, would only say "some time ago." She and Elliott also continued to withhold the time and place of the ceremony, reportedly scheduled for this week-end, but a few details were disclosed.

Miss Emerson said it will be a double ring ceremony. The best man will be Jack Frye, president of TWA Airlines. Matron of honor will be Mrs. Joseph Livergood, the former Zella Schumann-Heink, granddaughter of the late operatic singer, Mme. Schumann-Heink. Mrs. Livergood again will be filling the role she took at the actress' first wedding, which ended in a divorce two years ago.

Elliott Buys Rings.
Elliott was out buying the rings today, Miss Emerson said, and she was getting clothes "because a girl has to have some sort of trousseau, you know."

The actress said the marriage will not affect her film career, at least for the rest of the war.

When Col. Roosevelt was asked if he had anything to say about the big moment, he grinningly began, "Well, I think Faye is pretty wonderful—say, what are you trying to do, get an interview? I have nothing to say."

A HOT POEM ENDS
LOVE THAT A HOT LUNCH KINDLED

The hot lunch reconciliation of Mrs. Marian Sachay, 23, of 4826 George st., and her husband, Theodore, 32, cooled after one night, Mrs. Sachay told Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday in Circuit court.

A poem was shown to Judge Feinberg by Attorneys Joseph H. and Norman Becker, representing Mrs. Sachay, to support their client's suspicions. Its six stanzas began:

"I want you, Love,
O, I want you, Love,
With all my heart and soul I want you, Love."

Mrs. Sachay said she found the poem in a wallet in her husband's pants pocket the night he was home with her and added:

"He thinks of Peggy when he reads it."

Judge Feinberg, who tried to reconcile the couple last week by suggesting they eat a warm lunch together during a court recess, awarded Mrs. Sachay $15 a week temporary support, in her suit for separate maintenance on a charge of desertion.

Boilermaker Gets by Every Adversity.

Unexpected success in Marriage court yesterday crowned the courtship of Frank Fedro, 39, a persistent boilermaker, who spent two years wooing Mrs. Beatrice Waugh, 34, former wife of Thomas Waugh, 50, wealthy oil company executive, despite policemen and locksmiths. Adversity brought the couple together. Waugh, of 168 E. Pearson st., and the former Mrs. Waugh, of 4442 Altgeld st., were divorced in June, 1940, and Waugh appeared before Judge Michael Feinberg in Circuit court yesterday to petition for the custody of his son, Jerry, 8, on the ground that the boy's mother was unfit. He said she associated with Fedro to an immoral extent. Atty. Edward L. S. Arkema, representing Mrs. Waugh, said she admitted Fedro had been attentive to her, but denied she had accepted his attentions. Fedro, called by Arkema as a witness, said he had been trying for two years to win Mrs. Waugh as his wife. He fell in love with her when he was rooming at her house on Altgeld st. "I bought a wedding ring in 1942," he said, "but she would not take it. She had me arrested twice when I proposed too fervently. I guess she doesn't want me."

Mrs. Waugh said Fedro was persistent. She had the locks changed on her rooming house eight times to keep him out, she said. Judge Feinberg dismissed Waugh's complaint that Mrs. Waugh was not fit as a mother, after he talked with their son, Jerry, wanted to live with his mother. Mrs. Waugh looked happy, and Fedro looked almost perfectly happy. "If you'd only say 'yes,'" he said. "I have a ring—and even a license—and Marriage court is just downstairs."

"Yes," said Mrs. Waugh. This Thief Has Icy Heart

REBELS AGAINST NEWSPRINT CUT

BY ROBERT SAGE.

PARIS, Nov. 30. — The Parisian press today rose in rebellion against the decision by Robert Lacoste, minister of industrial production, to make a new wholesale slash in newsprint quotas. Asserting the measure is a political maneuver rather than economic necessity, editors declared they would refuse to accept it.

They have been clamoring for weeks to get their paper quotas increased in order to meet public demand.

The reason given by Lacoste for his action is that 375 tons of coal needed for paper manufacture cannot be transported from the mines to Paris within the coming three weeks. This argument was rejected in a strongly worded announcement issued this morning by the National Federation for the French Press, which says:

"At the very time a paper shortage is used as an excuse for cutting down papers born of the insurrection, two new newspapers are authorized to appear without any previous consultation with the federation. The latter consequently refuses to accept the measure called for by the minister of industrial production. The press in all countries is the arm of war. The newspapers of the resistance will not allow France to be disarmed."

The New Fire

WE may sometimes wonder what kind of people we are—Americans, yes.

But —

Whenever there is a human need or a catastrophe—we are quick to respond. We are defenders of the human being. We are fighters for the rights of every man, woman and child.

Let's look at the record.

In less than two hundred years our youth, our vigor and our courage have given men a new way of life.

Today, the average family in this nation enjoys more benefits than kings of old: Light—Power—Education—Freedom and Opportunity—for all time.

That is what we stand for.

We want to build—never destroy—

We want to advance science and knowledge and the well-being of every individual.

This is the fire of America—

The flame that will never die—

The hope for men and women and children to come.

One of the fruits of this fire has been our industrial growth.

Groups of men have banded together and worked together to bring to us the wonders that have made all the world look to America.

In our hour of great need, free men working in great industrial plants, at the bench, in the office, in the laboratory HAVE FORGED AND BUILT THE INSTRUMENTS WHICH ARE DESTROYING OUR ENEMIES.

Today, WAR.

TOMORROW, this same fire will build for America—and through example, for the world—a security, a freedom, an economy in which children can be born and grow up—free from fear want and repression.

* * *

In such a land when a group of men working together place after their company's signature such words as—"Serving through Science"—those words are inspired by that fire of America—the fire that ultimately means new health, new strength, and new opportunity for countless millions yet unborn.

THE DIRT IS SWEEPED UNDER THE RUG

Two scandals reaching into the highest places in the New Deal are being suppressed at the instance of President Roosevelt. Mr. Roosevelt has summarily dismissed Norman Littell, assistant attorney general, who brought grave charges of official misconduct against Atty. Gen. Francis Biddle. Sen. Mead, the New Deal chairman of the committee charged with investigating Mr. Biddle's conduct, has announced that the inquiry will go no farther. The palpable fact is that it was proving too damaging to the administration.

The other scandal, concerning the use of political blackmail to compel the owner of a New York radio station to surrender the station on disadvantageous terms to an administration crony, is being dealt with similarly. The special house committee investigating activities of the federal communications commission found this one so hot that it will continue to hear testimony only in executive session, with press and public barred. The committee's own counsel was so outraged by this decision that he has resigned, asserting that he will not be a party to suppression of the facts. Before the lid of secrecy was clamped on it came out that President Roosevelt had issued instructions to "forget it."

Atty. Gen. Biddle was accused by Littell of intervening repeatedly in behalf of the Savannah Shipyards company in a government condemnation suit which Littell was handling. The shipyard company was part of a corporate venture built up by a slick promoter from an original shoestring investment of $5,000 in order to profit from fat war contracts. Littell asserted that Thomas G. Corcoran, former White House idea man, now a lobbyist, acted for the shipyard in combination with three other former New Deal lawyers. They were James Rowe, former first assistant to Biddle; William J. Dempsey, former general counsel for the FCC, and William C. Kopolovitz, also a former member of the FCC legal staff.

Corcoran and his associates, Littell charged, induced Biddle to front for the shipyard in attempting to get a much higher condemnation settlement out of the government than Littell and the maritime commission felt was justified. The motive assigned by Rowe was that "those fellows [Corcoran and his principals] are our friends." Littell prophesied that there "would be a scandal for the attorney general." It has come, but it is noteworthy as a reflection on honor among New Dealers that Littell did not deem it necessary to disclose the sordid story until Mr. Roosevelt, at the urging of Mr. Biddle, was on the point of firing him.

Corcoran, Kopolovitz, and Dempsey also figure in the scandal over the hijacking of station WMCA from its former owner, Donald Flamm, but a good many others are mixed up in it, too. Flamm testified that after refusing an offer of $1,100,000 for the station he was highly pressured into selling it for $850,000 four years ago to Edward J. Noble, former undersecretary of commerce under Harry Hopkins. Noble later sold the station at a profit of $405,000 to Nathan Straus, former head of the United States housing authority.

Leslie E. Roberts, who had served as vice president of the station under Flamm, confessed that he had entered into a conspiracy by which Flamm was terrorized into giving up the station on threat that his license would be taken from him by the New Deal and given to some one else highly favored in Washington. The names of Corcoran and David K. Niles, assistant to President Roosevelt, were used to reinforce the threat. Niles had previously used his influence to plant Roberts inside the station's executive organization.

Roberts also asserted that Dempsey and Kopolovitz had faked an application for the station's frequency "in behalf of a prominent New Dealer," who, Flamm understood, was Corcoran, and that the New Deal conspirators expected him "to work from within the station on Flamm and keep him in a state of terror about loss of his license." After he had done his dirty work, Roberts said, he was double-crossed by the others.

Mr. Roosevelt sent his aid, Maj. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, over to the committee hearing to say that the President had ordered an investigation by the FCC into the sale of the station shortly after the transaction took place. This was promptly contradicted by former FCC Commissioner George H. Payne, who said that the White House executive clerk had telephoned him that Mr. Roosevelt had given instructions to "forget about it."

The factious basis for the decision to exclude press and public from further hearings is that Flamm has a civil suit pending in New York against Noble and that the evidence in Washington might prejudice the issues. This disregards the prior rights of the public in exposing offenses against law and morals, especially where these concern its agents in government. Rep. Vigglesworth, who voted against the dictate of secrecy, properly evaluated New Deal morality when he said, "Ever since the start of this investigation this committee and its staff have met with constant obstruction, intimidation, and underhand tactics from those in high places in the attempt to hamstring its work and to suppress the truth."

There have been scandals during Republican administrations, too. A Republican administration encouraged the fullest possible investigation, under the leadership of Democrats, into the Teapot Dome leases. Sen. Thomas J. Walsh was the head of the senate investigating committee. Atlee W. Pomeroy, former Democratic senator from Ohio, was one of the special prosecutors appointed by President Coolidge. Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, a Democrat, headed the investigation of Atty. Gen. Daugherty's connection with the Teapot Dome affair. Mr. Coolidge did not interfere once. The truth came out and the guilty were punished. Compare that outcome with the conduct of investigations into New Deal scandals. Mr. Roosevelt and his henchmen have got and are getting away with a great deal.

THE TRIBUNE takes a justifiable pride in the efficiency of its staff and mechanical equipment which made possible the printing in its Thursday final editions of a four color picture of the Lie that destroyed a grain elevator at 67th st. and Stewart av. The time between the taking of the picture and the dispatching of papers containing it to the newsstands was 10 hours. We can safely say that no other newspaper in the country would even have attempted such a feat. Normally it would be several days before any other paper could reproduce a color picture. No other paper would dream of doing it on the same day.

Tribune color photographers left for the first about noon Thursday. The picture was taken under the supervision of E. H. Johnson, color studio chief, about 2 p. m. Four members of the color studio staff worked with Mr. Johnson when the films were returned to THE TRIBUNE at 3:20 p. m. in developing red, yellow, and blue films, and a color transparency to be used as a guide. The films were turned over to the process engraving department at 5:30 p. m. This department, under direction of Pat Bresnahan, completed its job in four and one-half hours.

The stereotype department, under Supt. Robert J. Longmore, set to work at 10 p. m. to make the plates to be used on the presses. By midnight it had cast, routed, and nickel-plated 64 plates, which were put on the presses in register by the staff of Edgar Mahar, pressroom superintendent. The press run began at midnight after an ink setting had been made. John W. Park, production manager, was in general charge all thru these many intricate and painstaking operations.

THE TRIBUNE takes pride in the achievement and in the men who made it possible.

DOUBLE TALK

Mr. Stettinius was about to become secretary of state when his department put out a statement saying:

"The specific question of the guarantee of the Polish frontier by this government was not and could not have been at issue [in the resignation of Premier Mikolajczyk] since this government's traditional policy of not guaranteeing specific frontiers in Europe is well known."

It's news that the state department has any traditional policies except, perchance, that of backing up the English line and adhering, as yet, to the Monroe Doctrine. It was, however, true that so long as Washington's farewell address, supplemented by Jefferson's advice, was the guiding light of our foreign policy, we did not guarantee anything in Europe. That could have been called a traditional policy of non-involvement in the clash of special interests abroad. Whatever was left of it was abandoned by the present administration.

If Mr. Stettinius meant what the statement plainly says he would be announcing the rejection of the Dumbarton Oaks agreement and of all the formulas for a world organization to enforce peace. A guaranty of frontiers is the essence of Roosevelt globalism. It is the reason for the proposed international army. If the United States did not undertake to guarantee frontiers it would be useless in an organization which has just that purpose. The state department rediscovery of our traditional policy contradicts nearly everything the administration has done in foreign affairs or proposes to do.

Aggression is committed physically against frontiers. It is proposed that the peace conference fix frontiers and that the world peace organization sustain them, whatever injustices they may provoke. If we have a well known traditional policy excluding us from such arrangements we don't need to worry about Dumbarton Oaks, the security council, or the world army. We've taken a walk, which would be startling news for a large part of the world.

Mr. Stettinius has invented a tradition which he did and his department long ago rejected. He did so for a purpose, which was not to scrap all the new world agreements and understandings. Apparently it was to tell the Poles we could not protect them from Stalin because our traditions do not allow us to intervene in European territorial disputes. So far as this administration is concerned that tradition was manufactured to brush off the Poles.

Stalin is to have his way in eastern Europe. The task of breaking the news to the peoples affected may be embarrassing in London and Washington. Virtue is slightly tainted by burglary. Mr. Stettinius improvised a face saver and not a very brilliant one. It will take a lot of double talk to explain what he meant and what he didn't mean. If Mr. Churchill thought our new secretary of state meant what he said they'd be wheeling out a plane for the British prime minister or, rather, he'd be in Washington this minute.

A BRIGHT FUTURE

(Hartford Conn.) Courant.

It has long been known that the Democratic party is a loosely organized group with bitterly conflicting interests. Only President Roosevelt himself has been able to keep these from one another's throats. The recent election emphasized this fact more pointedly than ever before. Mr. Roosevelt won his fourth term almost entirely with the preponderant vote given him in densely populated urban areas. Indeed, 13 cities with a population of more than 500,000 each accounted for more than 2,200,000 of his estimated three million majority.

This indicates that the Democratic party is becoming increasingly the urban party, reflecting the philosophy and the aspiration of voters living in these congested areas, voters in whose mind security is paramount as compared with initiative and self-reliance.

If Mr. Roosevelt retires at the expiration of his fourth term, he will leave behind him a vacuum that will suck all the groups within his party into a rush for dominance.

Test Your Horse Sense

By Dr. George W. Crane

Select the answers which you consider best. The last problem counts five points. Then look for the correct answers below.

- Which one of the following invented the phonograph? Whitney Ford Edison Morse
- An automobile's wheelbase is measured from Front axle to rear axle Bumper to bumper Headlight to tail light Tire to tire
- Kit Carson should remind one of which character below? Explorer Naval hero Poet Indian fighter
- Which one of these should make one think of a pursued individual? Spoor Galoshes Rifle
- An adult female sheep is called by which name? Doe Ewe Wether Heifer
- If you were sorting the soiled family laundry which of the following articles would you have starched and which would you purposely leave unstarched? Place a check mark under the appropriate heading for each. You deserve one point for each correct judgment.

Percale apron..... Starched. Unstarched.
Knitted polo shirt.....
Crimple crepe dress.....
Man's shorts.....

Plain gingham dress.....
Score yourself as follows: 0-2, poor; 3-4, average; 5-6, superior; 7-9, very superior. (Note: The last question counts five points.)

WAR ON THE BOOKSHELF

It is time that the fighting in Alsace and Lorraine, with immediate prospects of total liberation of those provinces of the Rhenish frontier, should remind some one of their contributions to the American bookshelf. So we shall speak of Erickmann-Chatrain, their famous novel-writing team. The works of these collaborators were eagerly read in the United States from 1870 until 1890 or later.

Erickmann, first name Emile, was an Alsatian, and Chatrain, first name Alexandre, was a Lorrainer. Their collaboration began in 1847 and lasted until 1889, and their books, translated of course, were so widely distributed in this country that no reader of historical fiction between the Civil and Spanish-American wars could escape them. Their titles will arouse many memories among old-timers: "The Illustrious Dr. Mathieu," "Madame Therese," "Friend Fritz," "The History of a Conscript," "Waterloo," "The Blockade," "The Story of a Peasant," "The Story of the Pelebisette." Three of these tales have remained in print in the Everyman Library.

Erickmann-Chatrain dealt largely with war from an anti-militarist and anti-imperialist point of view—so much so that fire-eating Frenchmen accused them of a lack of patriotism. Nevertheless, they were popular at home and abroad. Their works frequently entered American homes in sets. In the boyhood of this writer they were as important as the works of James Fenimore Cooper and Rider Haggard.

Dramatizations of these stories figured in American stage history. "Friend Fritz" lived for years in the standard repertory, often under its French title, "L'Ami Fritz." Erickmann wrote a story called "The Polish Jew," which became associated with the brilliant career of Henry Irving as actor-manager. Can't you remember Irving in the terror-haunted scenes of "The Bells" which he frequently revived? That was the stage version of "The Polish Jew."

THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER

I wonder why they call me "The Unknown"? They are my countrymen. To them I am The Hope my mother had that I would be. The one on whose strong arm her age could lean. I am the Pride a father has in many sons. Who carry on the name when he is gone. I am the Comrade for some sister, who Would look to me for counsel and for care. I am the Husband, and the Sweetheart, too, Perchance the Father, whose children will not know The love he bore them. But above all I am the Patriot, who in his country's need Gave up the things in life he held most dear. That others might live free. That there might be Peace for all men. They call it Sacrifice. I am all this to them, and yet They call me "The Unknown." I wonder why? Eleanor C. Bainum.

Quizification on Quizicus

I thought I had seen a poem on every subject that would lend itself to rhapsodic versification. Then Quizicus comes out with a sonnet, no less (Nov. 25), on the ritual of putting up storm windows.

It must prove something; perhaps that there is no subject too mundane for the poet's pen. Or, on the other hand, it may prove that Quizicus has to date [they'll get him yet] managed not to be around when storm windows were being put up.

A poem like that gets the girls quizical again about his status, marital or single. They get all tizzical when they hear about him being cornered for lunch in the loop by some dizzical Quizicus. As for me, the connoisseur of (including storm windows) should never grove the poet's brow. I always picture him at the zoo with little Quizibel and Cussbert. How they came to be—to one so out of this world that he can be lyrical about storm windows—I do not know. But there they are, whether chimerical or physical—little Cussbert and little Quizibel. X-ray of Censor Skulls

First censor—Here's a story about a victory we're won in Sector A. I'm afraid to let the people back home know about it—they may think the war is about over and slacken their war work.

Second censor—Here's a story about a setback we've suffered in Sector X. I'm afraid to let the people back home know about it—they might lose heart and begin to agitate for a negotiated peace.

Both censors—Then we won't let the people back home know anything about the war.

Friend of Yanks' Kin

By Sally Joy Brown

[This department answers questions related to help available to relatives of service men, in the column or by mail, if stamped, addressed envelopes are sent to Sally Joy Brown.]

Mrs. E. S. writes: "My brother-in-law is missing in action. He has a wife and four children dependent on him. He has service insurance. In case of his death, from what sources and what amount of money would be available to care for the family?"

As long as your brother-in-law is listed as missing, the family allowance which his wife and children probably are receiving will be continued until such time as he is declared dead. His wife then will be entitled to six months' salary, paid in a lump sum, and known as the death gratuity. She also will be eligible, in the event she does not remarry, to a widow's pension and a pension for the children if they are under 18. Pensions are payable at $65 a month for a wife and child and $15 for other children. However, the pension for a widow and children may not exceed $100 a month, regardless of the number of children. If his wife has been named as beneficiary on his government insurance, she also would receive those benefits.

MINOR DIGESTIVE DISCOMFORTS OF OLDESTERS

WITH some of our older friends, the subject of indigestion becomes very real. By and large they have had no occasion to think about what the alimentary tract is doing. Regardless of what is eaten, they experience no distress. What happens when lessened digestive activity is decreed by advancing years or when a systemic malady, such as arthritis, forces one to curtail exercise? As we would expect, as a part of the aging process, the gastric secretions diminish. This may explain the increasing tendency to the use of alcohol for its tonic effect, particularly as a nightcap. Furthermore, it will stimulate a flagging appetite and there is no objection to small amounts under such circumstances, unless it means that the individual eats far more than he should and hence gains weight.

We must keep in mind constantly the fact that if absorption is up to par, the one who is changing from a busy life to merely putting about the garden or the home, really requires less food (fuel). Many who persist in the employment of standard meals will complain that the abdominal area feels puffy and that a dull ache is not at all uncommon. These symptoms are likely to appear after dinner, which may be cut in half with complete relief.

More often than not, the solution of the problem will lie in adjusting the ratio of nutriment to the needs of the body. A good breakfast, followed by a light lunch and a modest supper, will usually be well borne. Many will find it more convenient to consume five repeats each day but the quantity of each may be substantially less.

In oldsters who suffer from hardened arteries, the blood vessels within the gastric pouch and along the intestinal canal will become less efficient. Thus the output of the mucous glands will be decreased and the answer lies in more easily dissolved edibles.

Probably the most important lesson that age has to learn is to take plenty of time for everything at the table. Instead of a half hour, meal time may well occupy 60 minutes or more. If young people are about they may be excused. Their minds are so filled with what they are doing or are going to do that they have little leisure for the beneficent influence of stimulating conversation. Not so with those in the later decades. Let's allow them to dawdle as long as they wish. Complacency is a valuable asset and when aided by relaxation, even cucumbers may be handled with ease.

Now and then it will be necessary to caution against over-exercise. There may come a day when walking may be substituted for golf. While tobacco need not be omitted, it can be used with discretion.

Finally, one must not forget that the entire dietary program must be balanced. Deficiencies are likely to exhibit themselves unless proper proportions of the various classes of foodstuffs are imbibed. Certain viands are protective and here we must emphasize the merit of dairy products, milk and cheese, with a generous allotment of fruits, will be essential. While much emphasis has been placed upon whole grain bread, if one prefers the white variety it may be chosen. Too much roughness (cellulose) may lead to intestinal disorders which will be slow to yield to treatment.

Numbers Don't Solve It

A note from a book publisher says that a book called "New Numbers," by F. Emerson Andrews, is coming off the press. Mr. Andrews holds that to count by 10s is a mistake. Count by 12s, says he, and use a base of 12 units. He says this system is so simple it can be tested by anyone who can add or subtract. To one who knows all about numbers, anyway, it may be simple. To one who has never been able to master the intricacies, especially in multiplication, of the 10 integers commonly used today, it seems just another woeful complication in this woefully complicated world.

The traditional system of counting by 10 is based on nothing more logical than the fact that man has 10 fingers," declares Mr. Andrews. Well, Mr. Andrews, 10 fingers is logical enough for this party. So is 10 toes. As a matter of innocent inquiry, just what could be more logical than 10 fingers? And will using 12 units as a base reduce the logical debt any faster? Or make it any easier for dopes like this department to understand?

In utter distraction we enlisted the aid of Lawrence M. Graves, mathematician at the University of Chicago. "Mr. Graves," we asked, "will using 12 units make it easier to understand the national debt?" Mr. Graves' response was gloomy. "Nothing will," he said, concisely.

Moreover, he told us, this 12 stuff is nothing new. It has been known for centuries. The Babylonians used 60, and the Greeks used 12. The presumably good feature of 12 is that it has more divisors. It can be divided by 2, 3, 4, 6—and that's all.

And take the national debt [O, it only seems one world!]. Today it stands at 212 billion. Try and divide this by 12. Or, better still, try and estimate it by 12. Perhaps the solution to the national debt, or at any rate a good means of taking it out of current conversation and thought, is to reinterpret it in terms of 12. Then no one would even attempt to understand it. The way it is now a few optimists have gone into caves to try.

NEW PARTY? St. Charles, Ill., Nov. 28.—The Republican party offered all it had and it still wasn't quite enough. Dewey presented his case very ably, tho he may have tried to please both sides a little too much.

But why not face the fact that the terms "Democrat" and "Republican" have served their usefulness? No one honestly believes that the name Democrat represents the party in power. Hillman and his Communists sense that the name has a certain number of followers out of blind loyalty, therefore they choose, so long as it meets their needs, to hide behind that mask. Southerners are opposed to the name "Republican" even tho they are just as much opposed to Hillman and his Communists.

Organized labor is here to stay—honorable labor and business against dishonest labor and foreign ions. Neither business nor honest labor had much to say in the recent election and unless they organize now their voice will be silent long before the '48 election. Why not drop the name "Republican" for a party called "labor and management"? Those opposed to the New Deal and communism must have something to offer labor before they can hope to win an election.

Mrs. EARL H. STOLL.

WASTE IN WASHINGTON. Chicago, Nov. 28.—Why is it that our government can always find new and better ways to squander the taxpayers' money. In this morning's TRIBUNE there is a story about a deal to dispose of 20 million dry cell batteries at 4 cents each which cost the people 7.1 cents each. This means that they propose to sell for $80,000 something for which they paid $1,962,000, or a loss of $982,000. Reduced to war bonds this means that the moneys invested in a $100 bond by 9,093 persons (and a lot of service men and women are buying bonds) goes down the sewer. I take off my hat to Sen. Kilgore (D., W. Va.) for a protest in which you quote him as saying: "I'm getting tired of seeing speculators sitting around like overfed vultures on a rail, ready to pick up bargains at the taxpayers' expense."

If the government paid 7.1 cents each for those batteries they ought to be worth that much to a chain store outfit. My employer, an essential industry, has a hard time getting such items at any price.

BLOOD FOR FIGHTING MEN

Maybe more of you will see the need is great, and give your pint to save a life. The soldier says: "Talking about blood banks, you should see the wonders that plasma does to our boys wounded in battle. It may have no life left in him, but, after one or two units of plasma, it puts a lot of life in him, he can talk and know what's going on, and it sure has been saving a lot of men. ment from the Clover club," Mitchell said. "I had already left the Dorsey apartment and was out in the corridor when I heard sounds of scuffling. I saw nothing and had no part in it."

Adjourn to Dorsey's.
Hall said Dorsey was the first to speak and invited him over to the bandleader's table for a drink. The party, which in the meanwhile had been joined by Eddie Norris, another actor, then began to break up and they all decided to go to Dorsey's only a few blocks away.

Asked by Deputy District Atty. Myers if there were any drinks served at the Dorsey's, Hall replied in the affirmative that he took only two or three sips of his because it was scotch and soda.

"I'm a scotch and plain water drinker," he said, the actor explained.

He then told how, at Dorsey's suggestion, he tried to telephone his wife (Frances Langford) in the South Pacific, but was unsuccessful because the army and navy had constant use of the telephone service.

Mrs. Dorsey Annoyed.
"Did you see any unpleasantness in the apartment?" inquired Myers.

A—I was sitting on the sofa . . . and from what I gathered . . . Mrs. Dorsey was sitting next to Norris and Mrs. Dorsey became annoyed.

Q—Did you hear any conversation?

A—Yes. Mrs. Dorsey bawled him (Norris) out.

Q—Tell us what she said.

A—I'm sorry, I can't tell that.

At this point the jury and courtroom quivered with unusual interest as attorneys immediately stood up offering objections. Hall stood fast and for a moment refused to testify, but Judge Crum stepped in with the order: "Tell us what she said."

"Filthy Language."
A—Well, it was very filthy language. Mrs. Dorsey told him (Norris) to get out in no uncertain terms.

Again there were violent objections by attorneys, Hall still refusing to repeat her words, even for a moment defying Judge Crum. The jurist, however, firmly ordered him to testify, and when Hall did so he quoted Dorsey as making the objectionable statement.

"Tommy Dorsey called Eddie Norris ——— and told him to get the hell out of the apartment and take the rest of the ——— out with him," Hall testified. "When he (Norris) started to get up and leave, Dorsey said, 'Ah, sit down, I was only kidding.'"

Denies Any Trouble.
Hall denied that he personally had had any unpleasantness with Mrs. Dorsey or the band leader. As he started to leave at the end of the party Hall said he went next door to Smiley's apartment, where some of the others were, and learned there that Miss Churchill had lost her purse. He agreed to go back with her to the Dorsey apartment to look for it, he said.

He said Mrs. Dorsey admitted him to the apartment after he explained his mission.

Q—What happened?

A—I walked up, saying that I was very sorry to bother her and put an arm around her, looking around to spot the purse. . . . After I put an arm around her Mrs. Dorsey yelled from the balcony saying, "What are you doing in there?" I walked over to the balcony.

Q—What was the conversation?

Argues with Dorsey.
A—Mr. Dorsey was seated next to a table and I sat on the table.

Q—What was the conversation?

A—He asked me what I was doing and then said: "Don't give me that what were you doing with my woman?" I said, "Wait a minute." He said, "Don't give me that ——— I saw you look around the room to see if I was about." Then I said, "Tommy, you have had too much to drink and have been smoking the wrong kind of cigarettes."

Q—What did he say then?

A—He didn't say anything—he hauled off and socked me.

Q—Where were you struck?

A—On the back side of the jaw, the left side of the jaw.

Q—Did you suffer any injury?

Hit Between Eyes.
A—No, but it made me a little mad. Mr. Dorsey walked up to me and I told him to take off his glasses. If that's what he wants I'd let him have it. Just as he took his glasses off I was hit square between the eyes and about knocked out.

The next I saw Mr. Dorsey had me on the railing and I was almost going over. Then I had hold of him, a headlock around his head.

Q—Did he say anything?

A—He threatened once he was going to kill me. I said, "I don't think you will." I remember I said, "What the devil are we fighting about—I'd sure like to know."

The actor said the next he remembered Mrs. Dorsey came out on the porch, grabbed him by the hair and said, "What's wrong with you guys?" Hall said he explained that Dorsey had threatened to kill him.

About this time, Hall related, Smiley came running in and took part in the fracas.

"I honestly believe that was when I got cut, I'm not sure," Hall related.

He said Smiley started hitting him. He finally turned around and asked, "What the devil are you doing?"

"Never mind," Hall quoted Smiley as saying, "Fighting is my business."

Hall then told how he was "getting beat up pretty bad" and how he left shortly afterward. On the way out he said he was hit on the back of the head from behind several times.

He said he lost his glasses during the battle—"and I don't see very well without them."

Hall said Smiley and Mitchell, the Chicagoan, took him from the Dorsey apartment after hostilities ceased. Smiley had him by the coat collar and was sort of giving me the bum's rush out of there," Hall testified.

Hall detailed his wounds. He had a cut back of his left ear. Another on the back of his head and his left nostril was cut completely thru.

He told about the Dorsey's calling him up the next day. He said that Peggy Langford, his secretary and sister-in-law, listened on an extension phone.

"How Are Ya, Boy?"
"Tommy was very gay and chipper," the actor told the jury. "He said, 'How are ya, boy?' and I said, 'not so hot.' I asked him what we were fighting about, and Tommy said, 'darned if I know.'"

"I said, 'It must have been because I put my arm around your wife,' and Tommy said, 'Aw forget it, boy, it was all a mistake.' Tommy said, 'I'm going on the wagon. Are you?' and I said, 'You'd better go on the wagon.'"

He apologized again and said his nose was in bad shape. I said, 'You ought to see my nose.' Then he said Pat wanted to talk to me. She said she was sorry, that it was all a misunderstanding. She said she felt terrible about it. I said I felt terrible, too.

Called Smiley "Bum."
"By the way," I said to Pat, 'who's that guy Smiley? He's the guy that cut me up.' And she said, 'O, that bum, I don't even want to mention his name on the phone.' Then Tommy got back on the phone and asked if he could do anything, and I said, 'Sure, I lost my glasses over there,' and told him he could send them over. But I still don't have my glasses.

"So," said Hall, as if summing up, "they apologized and I accepted, and I thought that's all there'd be to it."

The state presented a sport coat Hall wore to the party. It was torn badly, some of the holes being large enough for the prosecutor to pass his hand thru.

Miss Churchill's Story.
Hall took the witness stand soon after the opening of the afternoon session of court, after Miss Churchill testified the battle between Dorsey and Hall was quite a gory affair, not fought according to marquis of Queensbury rules.

Miss Churchill didn't get the opportunity to tell the jury about the touch-and-go scrap she had with Mrs. Dorsey while the boys were throwing punches. She had told the grand jury about it.

Today, however, the court ruled that the encounter between the girls was an unrelated issue. The alleged name calling and clothes-tearing episode, which might have added considerable spice, didn't get in the records of the trial, altho it is in the grand jury transcript.

Jane testified that there had been some drinking in Tommy's apartment before he shouted to Hall: "Take your hands off my wife."

Jane may not have seen all the fight, she admitted, but she did see the big, athletic Hall clamp one of those wrestling hammerlocks on Dorsey's neck.

There were several punches exchanged, and she saw blood running from Dorsey's nose. Hall was bleeding, too, and Mrs. Dorsey was yelling at him, threatening to pull his hair unless he let go of her Tommy.

Several persons at the party, held in celebration of Mrs. Dorsey's birthday, tried to break up the scrap. Jane's friend, Mitchell, the Chicago plastics manufacturer, tried his hand.

"He couldn't separate them," Jane testified, "and he's about 6 feet tall. Mrs. Dorsey yelled for Smiley and he came from his apartment next door."

STETTINIUS WINS CONFIRMATION BY SENATE, 67-1

BY PHILIP DODD.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)
Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—The senate today confirmed the nomination of Edward R. Stettinius Jr. to be secretary of state, by a vote of 67 to 1, after Sen. Langer (R., N.D.) had delayed action with a two hour and 20 minute speech attacking the new secretary as a representative of Wall st. financial interests.
In a surprise move yesterday Langer objected to a motion by Sen. Connally (D., Tex.), chairman of the foreign relations committee to waive rules and take up the nomination. It had been unanimously approved by the committee earlier in the day, but senate rules provide for a 24 hour period between committee action and a vote in the senate.
Morgan Influence Charged.
In his senate speech today Langer charged that, as chairman of the

PATRICIA HOLDS OWN IN LIFE FIGHT; DOCTOR REFUSES PREDICTION

Patricia Attaway, 6 year old Aurora lymphatic leukemia victim, is holding her own in her fight to live. Her blood count still is up and she hasn't had a transfusion since last Sunday, Dr. E. M. Thomas said yesterday.

"But," he added, "we are not making any foolish predictions, he's holding her own and that's all."

Patricia has been in St. Charles hospital, Aurora, since Nov. 9. Her leucemia daddy, Chier Petty Officer I. F. Attaway, traveled 8,000 miles from his South Pacific base, where he had been on duty 28 months, to be at the bedside of his daughter, since his arrival last Saturday Patricia's condition has improved.

United States Steel corporation prior to joining the government service, Stettinius had been under the influence of J. P. Morgan & Co., international bankers.
Langer recalled that Stettinius father, Edward R. Stettinius Sr., had been a Morgan partner after serving as assistant secretary of war in President Wilson's cabinet.

Lists Five New Yorkers.
Langer said confirmation of Stettinius would result in President Roosevelt having five New Yorkers in his cabinet of 10—Stettinius, Treasury Secretary Morgenthau, War Secretary Stimson, Navy Secretary Forrestal, and Labor Secretary Perkins.

Following Langer's talk, senators rose from both sides of the chamber to defend Stettinius. They included McKeller (D., Tenn.), White (R., Me.), Vandenberg (R., Mich.), Davis (R., Pa.), Connally, and Clark (D., Mo.).

1944 Marriage Licenses
May Exceed 1943 Total

Business at the county marriage license bureau may be better this year than in 1943, when 40,998 licenses were issued, Sidney Summerfield, chief clerk, said yesterday.

Last month 3,019 licenses were issued and the total for 11 months this year rose to 38,901. The bureau's best year on record was 1941, first year of the draft, when 48,317 couples took out licenses.

CONGRESS SEEKS FULL STORY OF LITTELL OUSTER

Biddle Assistant Fired by Roosevelt.

mittie in a letter which Biddle sent the committee yesterday.

Littell told reporters he held his press conference in the department of justice in defiance of orders by Biddle not to hold such a conference.

Recalls Avery Eviction.

With his stately, silvery haired wife at his side, Littell laughingly recalled that the army had carried Chairman Sewell L. Avery bodily out of the Montgomery Ward & Co. offices in Chicago when the government took over the mail order house, and commented:

"I don't know if any marines will be sent around to remove me."

"Mr. Biddle ordered me to hold no press conference," Littell said. "I had already called one and decided to disobey orders and hold it in my office. I didn't think I'd treat the press to the discourtesy of inviting the reporters down to the curb."

"What is the weakest part of the justice department?" Littell was asked.

Without alluding to his unprecedented attack on Biddle, Littell replied:

"I think I've already made that clear."

Without Any Trouble.

"Dear," put in Mrs. Littell, "you ought to mention that you've served under the three previous attorney generals without any trouble."

"I'm glad you brought that up," responded Littell, smiling.

He then claimed credit for reorganizing the army and navy's land divisions and said he had supervised the government's vast real estate acquisition program throughout the war as head of the justice department land division.

Littell's latest letter to the war investigating committee was made public by Chairman Mead (D. N. Y.).

"Belies" Biddle Denial.

It said a department of justice memorandum scorching him for testifying before congressional committees "belies" Biddle's denial that this testimony was the reason Littell was asked to quit.

This is also untrue, Littell commented on Biddle's assurance that Littell had been given time to consider resigning.

"He gave me two hours to resign or be fired," Littell asserted, "and on that very day sent over to the White House the form of revocation of my appointment. Every day thereafter he requested the President for revocation of my appointment."

President's Views.

The President, in announcing Littell's dismissal, said:

"When statements made by Norman Littell first appeared in the papers, I wrote him that it was primarily an executive matter; and that I hoped for his own career he would resign.

"Since then he has volunteered a long statement, thus substantiating what the attorney general had said about his insubordination."

"This is inexcusable; and under the circumstances my only alternative is to remove him from office, which I have done today."

Biddle, in a statement, described Littell's assertions concerning himself and Corcoran as "reckless and unfounded," but said he did not propose "to enter into any controversy with him in the public press."

FIND U. S. TREATS WAR PRISONERS BETTER THAN FOE

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30.—The house military affairs committee reported today that enemy prisoners held in this country are receiving generally better treatment than American prisoners in the hands of the enemy.

In an 89 page comprehensive report on war prisoners, the committee found the United States is following to the letter the Geneva convention of 1929 relating to prisoners, and that in some cases privileges accorded enemy captives have created resentment among Americans. On the whole, however, it said, enemy prisoners have not been "coddled."

As to American prisoners in Germany, the report said that "in general, the German government has endeavored to accord them the standards of treatment prescribed by the Geneva prisoners of war convention."

Concerning Japan, the committee said that government has undertaken to apply the Geneva convention "with some modifications," with the result that American prisoners in Japanese camps have not had their needs filled according to our standards.

The report on treatment of enemy prisoners in this country was based on an exhaustive inspection by investigators of many of the 466 camps in which 334,618 captives were held as of Nov. 1. Of these, 281,344 were Germans, 51,032 Italians, and 2,242 Japanese.

MALARIA STRIKES NEW LOW AMONG YANKS IN PACIFIC WAR AREAS

BY ARTHUR VEYSEY.

(Chicago Tribune Press Service.)

LEYTE, P. I., Nov. 30.—Malaria has fallen to a new low in the southwest Pacific and among the troops on Leyte. Lowland mosquitoes are virtually free of malaria and continued use of atabrine by the troops almost eliminates the danger of the disease, Maj. Harold January, attending physician to general headquarters, said today.

January said that altho mosquitoes found in the hills above 1,500 feet are malarial, no troops fighting at those elevations had turned up in hospitals as malaria victims.

So long as the troops take their atabrine pill daily it is almost impossible to develop the fever, he said. The only exceptions are those whose blood does not absorb atabrine or those whose normal bodily resistance becomes extremely low.

U. S. CASUALTIES REACH 536,950; 119,320 KILLED

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30 (AP).—Casualties for the fighting forces have reached 536,950. Army and navy dead total 119,320.

From Pearl Harbor thru Nov. 15, army losses totaled 461,058. Secretary of War Stimson said today. This was an increase of 6,878 in one week from Nov. 7.

Navy casualties are 75,892, an increase of 1,277 for the week. Army casualties, together with those a week ago are: Killed, 89,840 and 88,245; wounded, 258,106 and 254,283; missing, 57,514 and 56,442; prisoners, 55,598 and 55,210.

The navy casualties: Killed, 29,480 and 29,208; wounded, 32,600 and 31,574; missing, 9,326 and 9,347; prisoners, 4,486 and 4,486 [unchanged].

Alexander Kirk Named Ambassador to Italy

Washington, D. C., Nov. 30 (AP).—Alexander C. Kirk of Illinois was nominated by President Roosevelt today to be ambassador to Italy. Kirk now is United States representative of the allied advisory council for Italy. He was charge d'affaires in Rome when Italy came into the war in June, 1940.

A "CHAMP" NEVER QUILTS

AT Pearl Harbor... the Navy didn't quit. At Tarawa... the Marines didn't quit. At Cassino... the Army didn't quit. In the invasion of Europe... the Coast Guard didn't quit.

Our armed champs didn't quit when the going was hardest at Anzio... they didn't get careless and slow up when the going got easier in that sweep through France.

The champ never quits trying. He doesn't quit when he is all but beaten; he doesn't quit when he has his opponent all but knocked out.

Even when we are down to only one enemy... the Jap... we are still facing the most ruthless enemy Americans ever fought. No American "champ" of the home front will quit buying War Bonds as long as our champs in the worldwide fighting services need...

More B-29s to knock out Tokio (and they cost $600,000 each).

More P-47 Thunderbolts that out-climb and out-fight any enemy ship (and cost $50,000 apiece).

More tank-doctors to run interference for our boys (at a cost of $64,000 per tank).

More supply ships... more gas and oil than were used in the whole European invasion... more hospital ships... more evacuation hospitals... and more of all the 700,000 other things the armed forces use.

The American people are champs. The All-American champ will buy at least one extra $100 War Bond in the Sixth War Loan Drive... and continue his monthly purchases of war bonds.

TOWN'S ONLY ICE PLANT CLOSED BY OPA DECREE

Hospital, Bakery Made to Haul Their Own.

Hilldale, Mich., Nov. 30 (Special).—An OPA ruling which caused Hilldale's only ice dealer to quit business has deprived local residents of their only source of ice and has forced a hospital and bakery to hire a truck to haul ice from Jackson, 32 miles away, it was disclosed today.

The dealer is Paul Elliott, proprietor of the Elliott Ice and Coal company, which has been serving Hilldale businesses and residents for more than a decade.

Elliott said he had suspended his ice business a month ago because the district OPA office in Detroit had refused his request for permission to raise the ceiling price from 50 to 70 cents a hundred pounds on retail sales in the city.

Cities Increased Expenses. The dealer said he based his request for an increase on rising costs of labor and truck maintenance and because he was forced to truck the ice from Jackson, a 64 mile round trip, when the plant at Coldwater went out of business. Coldwater, a 44 mile round trip from Hilldale, had been the closest source of ice.

W. E. Fitzgerald, district OPA director, notified Elliott his request for a price increase had been denied because an examination of his business records disclosed the ice sales still brought Elliott a profit, despite the rising costs of distribution.

Elliott said the profit was so small that the risks involved did not warrant continuing his ice business.

Hilldale hit by the lack of ice were the Hilldale Community Health center, the hospital, and the Hilldale Bakery company. The bakery uses from 200 to 700 pounds of ice daily to cool dough, while the hospital requires 200 pounds daily when its oxygen tent is in use.

Buy at Retail Rate. E. A. Dibble Jr., manager of the bakery, said he had joined hospital officials in hiring a private truck to make the trip to Jackson about twice a month for ice. He said that because of their limited demands they were forced to purchase the ice at the retail rate of 61 cents a hundred pounds.

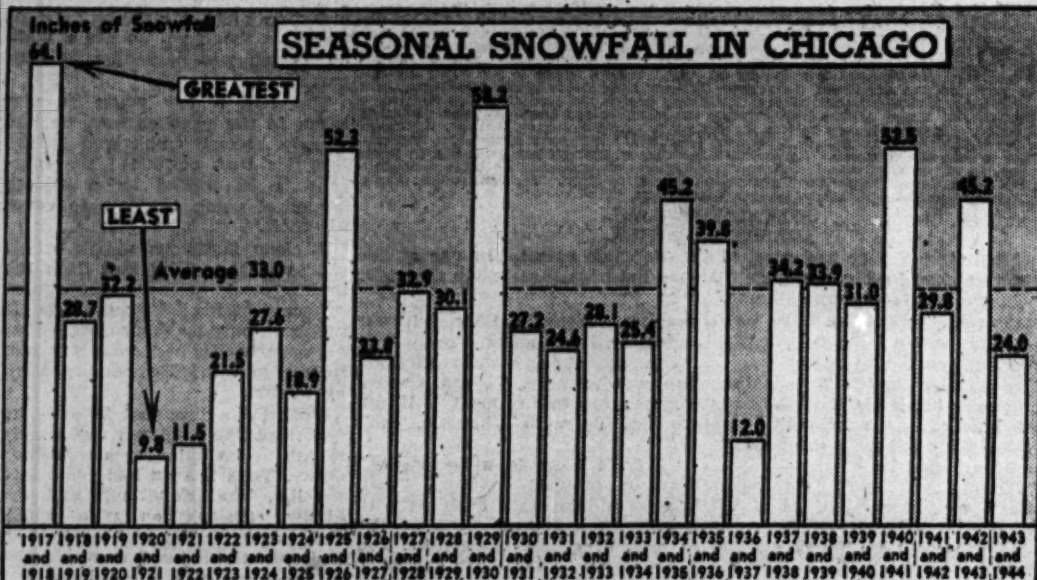

Dibble said ice now is costing the hospital and bakery almost a dollar a hundred pounds, or twice as much as previously, because the retail price must be paid and because of the expense of transportation.

Appeals by the city council and the local OPA price panel for relief from the lack of ice have brought no action from the district OPA office.

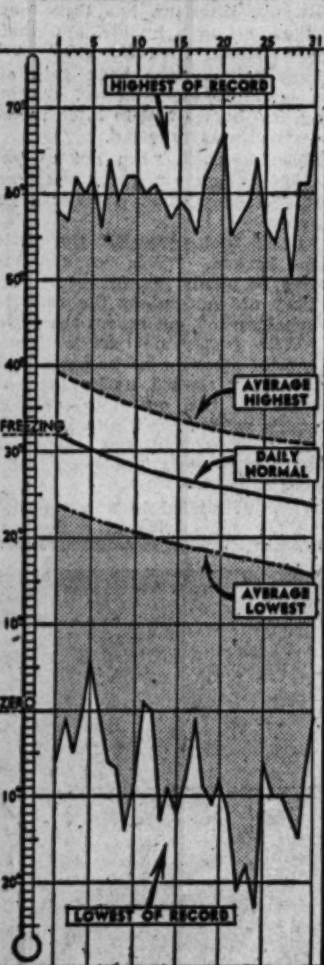

Payment for Train Ride Years Ago Sets Mind Free

When H. R. Sampson, general traffic manager of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois railroad, opened a letter from Los Angeles yesterday three $1 bills fell out. The accompanying note said: "Years ago I rode one of your trains without paying. I am getting along in years and since I have gone west and become a Christian I want to clear my conscience."

Chicago's Record of Snowfall and Winter Cold

TEMPERATURES MONTH OF DECEMBER

Chicago's first sample of winter of the Chicago bureau, yesterday, was a little sharper last night, but it remained mild compared with zero weather to the west and a disrupting sleet and snow storm over New England. Today's high temperature was placed at 25 above in a forecast that predicted 10 to 15 above last night. Rising temperatures were predicted for tomorrow and Sunday for Chicago.

Chicago's snow was recorded as only a trace. Land O' Lakes, Wis., had 8 inches on the ground, some from previous falls; Madison, 2 inches; Muskegon, Mich., 3 inches; an inch over Iowa, and 4 to 6 inches in Minnesota.

Weather in November was described as "mild, dark and dry" by O. T. Lay, meteorologist in charge.

WOMAN RAPED, ROBBED.

On her way home from a night job, Miss Josephine Zinke, 23, of 2018 S. Mayfield, was choked, raped, and robbed of $25 and a ring by a Negro early yesterday, she is reported to police. She said the man threatened her with a revolver while she was waiting for a street car at 91st st. and Wentworth av. and forced her into an alley.

Only 3 Per Cent of New Car Stockpile Is Left

Less than 3 per cent of the 520,000 new automobiles unsold at the start of rationing remain in the nation's stockpile, the office of price administration said yesterday in announcing that 3,600 have been made available for sale in December. The current supply of 15,000 will have to last until more are made, it announced. Chicago's quota for December is 116, the second largest quota in the country.

HALIFAX TELLS WHY LIPSTICK IS SENT TO BRITAIN

Envoy Defends Country's Attitude Toward India.

Milwaukee, Wis., Nov. 30 (Special).—Britain's attitude toward India was defended today by British Ambassador Halifax, who addressed more than 1,000 members of Milwaukee service clubs, meeting under auspices of the Milwaukee Civic Alliance, at Hotel Schroeder.

Halifax also discussed a report that Britain was receiving lipstick under lend-lease. He said it was true, but averred that the lipstick was used to mark the foreheads of wounded soldiers with the nature and location of their wounds.

Doesn't Represent Country. Discussing India the envoy, a former viceroy, said:

"One of the great charms of that country is that the further away from it you get, the easier its governmental problems look. The Indian national congress is not what its name implies, but a political party which represents only 4 million of 350 million people.

"It does not speak for India. In 1935 the British parliament passed a law giving the Indians provincial autonomy in 11 provinces with legislative powers, possessing practically all the powers that the states in your union enjoy today.

Hindu Oppose Division. "We also hope to create a federal government. The sole outstanding problem is what is to be the nature of that central authority. The difficulty of adjustment there is the deep division between 90,000,000 Moslems and 260,000,000 Hindus. You may say that the majority should rule but the Moslems simply will not stand for Hindu domination.

"The solution then would seem to be to divide India into two states, Moslem and Hindu. The Hindus will not stand for this.

"They must solve this problem themselves. After they solve it we will give them a federal government and they can decide whether they want to stay in the British empire or get out of it."

Tomorrow Halifax will leave for Madras where he will be the guest of Acting Gov. Goodland.

21 MARINES GET PURPLE HEART AT GREAT LAKES

Twenty-one marines wounded at Guam and Saipan were decorated with the Purple Heart yesterday by Col. Chester L. Fordney, senior marine officer in charge of the central procurement division, in "Marine day" ceremonies at the United States naval hospital at Great Lakes, Ill.

Capt. Frederick Cers, medical officer in command at the hospital, who introduced Col. Fordney, said it was the largest Purple Heart ceremony ever held at Great Lakes. Similar medals will be awarded later to seven marines unable to attend yesterday's ceremonies.

More than 400 patients in the hospital, some of them in wheelchairs, witnessed the ceremony in the hospital recreation building, where Col. Fordney remarked that the Purple Heart "is a medal never sought, but one which it is an honor to wear."

Among the 21 marines receiving medals were Pvt. Russell L. Huff, 21, Danville, Ill.; Sgt. Clarence C. Collier, 23, Watseka, Ill.; Pvt. Philip Valley, 19, Racine, Wis.; and Corp. Kermit L. Bergstrahl, 22, Rockford, Ill. Among the seven to receive medals next week is Pvt. Ralph K. Birky of Zion, Ill.

After receiving their medals the marines and the hospital patients enjoyed an hour's concert by the United States marine corps women's reserve band from Camp Lejeune, N. C. Master Sgt. Charlotte Plummer directed the 45 women musicians.

ACT TO MOVE 'L' TO CONGRESS ST. SUPER-HIGHWAY

The city council committee on traffic and public safety yesterday approved a tentative proposal to run the Garfield park "L" line thru the center of the proposed Congress st. superhighway.

The highway would run in a depression 400 feet wide westward from Desplains st. The "L" tracks would be between two four-lane roads to Kedzie av., according to the plan suggested by Philip Harrington, commissioner of subways and superhighways. If this were brought about, he said, 3 1/2 miles of elevated structure could be removed. Thruout most of this distance the structure is one-half mile north of Congress st.

Ald. Cowhey (41st) objected on the ground that the new idea would entail extra costs. Harrington retorted, "You haven't seen anything yet." Harrington went on to say that the federal government, state, and city would combine in a mighty building program after the war, and that unless Chicago planned far ahead, "we will find ourselves a third rate city."

ALLMAN SHIFTS 4 SUPERVISORS AND 4 CAPTAINS

Police Commissioner Allman late yesterday transferred four supervising captains, four district captains, five lieutenants, seven sergeants, and 37 patrolmen.

The order, effective today, amounted to a shakeup in the higher police brackets. Not since the rank of supervising captain was created more than a decade ago had so many such officials—four of a total of six—been shifted at one time.

Commissioner Allman's only comment was his usual terse "for the good of the service." A high city hall official reported, however, that the commissioner's action was prompted by increasing complaints against gambling.

Transfers of Supervisors. The supervising captains moved and their old and new assignments are: William J. Byrne, from the 6th (north side) division to the 1st (south side) division; Richard P. Gill, from the 1st division to the 4th (west side); John P. Horan, from the 4th division to the 5th (northwest side); and Joseph Goldberg, from the 5th division to the 6th.

The district captains shifted are: Patrick J. Crotty, from Stockyards to South Chicago; Thomas Kilroy, from South Chicago to Stockyards; John A. Egan, from Chicago Lawn to Morgan Park; and John P. Ryan, from headquarters (inactive) to Cram.

Lieutenants Get New Posts. Lieutenants affected are Charles G. O'Regan, who goes as acting captain to Chicago Lawn from Morgan Park; Patrick J. O'Shea, who stays as acting captain at the North av. station; Barth J. Moran, who continues as acting captain at Gresham; and Michael Spitz, who continues as acting captain at E. Chicago av.

The fifth lieutenant, Thomas J. McLaughlin, is transferred from Marquette to Austin.

CITES CITY BODY OVER OUSTER OF CAPT. HARRISON

Judge Calls Board in Contempt Case.

Judge Joseph Graber in Superior court yesterday ordered the city civil service commission to show cause by next Tuesday why it should not be held in contempt of court for filing allegedly incomplete and falsely dated records in the case of Thomas Harrison, former police captain, who is seeking return to the force.

"If this was a deliberate attempt to mislead the court, some one will pay for it," Judge Graber said.

One of Seven Captains Dismissed. Harrison was one of seven captains dismissed by the commission last June after an investigation of gambling. He subsequently filed suit to regain his job. On Nov. 13, Judge Graber ordered the commission to file an answer, including a complete record of its proceedings.

Atty. Walter Tinsley, representing Harrison, asked for the contempt rule against the commission. He asserted that the commission filed in court, Nov. 22, a purported record setting forth that the decision of the commission was on file with the minutes of the proceedings on June 16, the date of the dismissal of the seven captains.

Alleges Discrepancy in Dates. Tinsley told the court the complete findings were not dictated by the commission until June 21 and were returned the next day, six days after the dismissals. "Notwithstanding those known facts, the commission records now bear the date of June 16 as the date of the discharge," Tinsley added.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Carl Lundquist said that actual signing of the report was held up because one member of the commission was out of the city. He asserted the facts were set forth in the commission's motion to strike Harrison's suit.

Enthusiasm for the day begins with breakfast. In war time substantial breakfasts have become more popular, and those who include in these substantial meals know how much better they feel than after a skimpy, "breathless breakfast." Slim breakfasts do not supply the body with enough energy foods, and the lack of body fuel may show up in headaches or lassitude throughout the day.

In winter especially we need heartier breakfasts and seem to relish meals including plenty of warm foods. Over cooked breakfasts are as practical as the popular oven cooking. While the muffins or biscuits are baking and the bacon oven broiling, the cereal also may be cooked in the oven. Oatmeal adapts itself very well to this kind of preparation and is lighter and fluffier than when cooked top-of-stove fashion. The temperature needed for the hot cereal may vary from 350 to 450 degrees depending on the other oven contents.

Oven Cooked Oatmeal.
Place 2 cups regular or quick cooking rolled oats and 1 teaspoon salt in casserole. Pour 4 cups boiling water over oats. Stir once, cover, and bake for 10 to 15 minutes.
Serves four to six.

Vary this standard recipe by adding 1/4 cup raisins to oatmeal before baking. To please the children, sprinkle 1/4 cup chocolate chips on top of hot oatmeal before serving; or top with a few marshmallows and toast them under the broiler for a few minutes.

If those in your family can count on you for breakfasts with plenty of variety, you'll be able to get them up on time and on their toes.
"Wonder what Mom has for breakfast this morning?" then will be spoken in tribute to you.

"Mom" has her choice of a long list of breakfast ideas and need never get into a rut. There are plain muffins and fancy muffins—jelly, bacon, sausage, cornmeal, bran, fruit, and nut muffins. Biscuits and pancakes and breakfast eggs have their variations, too, and French toast and even plain toast need not always turn up with the same flavor personality.

Toast Variations.
Maple Toast: Spread toast with margarine and maple syrup and bake or broil until hot.

Butterscotch Toast: Sprinkle hot margarined toast with brown sugar and broil until bubbly.

Marmalade Toast: Split English muffins, toast on the split side, spread with margarine and a thin layer of orange marmalade, and bake. Leftover baking powder biscuits or muffins are good this way, too.

Scrambled Eggs with CROUTONS.
(Serves four to six.)
3 slices day old bread
1/4 cup bacon drippings
3 eggs
1 cup milk
Salt and pepper.

Toast bread and cut in cubes. Fry in bacon drippings until golden brown. Beat eggs slightly, add milk and seasonings, and beat until well mixed. Pour into skillet with bread cubes and cook, stirring from bottom and sides of pan until eggs are just set. Keep heat low. Serve at once.

Breakfast Egg Puff.
(Serves two to three.)
3 eggs
1/4 teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper
1 cup milk

Beat seasoned eggs until very light, add milk, and pour into well greased double boiler top. Set over boiling water and cook covered without stirring until set, about 20 to 30 minutes. Do not remove cover for first 20 minutes.

Bananas and Onion Used in Apple Salad Variation

A delightful variation of the popu-of the country, will ease within two weeks. In fact, a surplus may pile up. Products from which bacon is cured are being produced more abundantly than at any time since last June and will continue in heavy tonnage until spring.

Altho packers must set aside half the bacon production, largely for the services, the remaining 50 per cent will be sufficient to take care of domestic needs because the amount of products suitable for curing that will go into bacon, is expected to be larger than usual.

Some of these cuts, such as the belly of the hog, formerly were sold in large quantity to a southern trade as salted meats, but since many of the southern workers have been making more money than ever, before they are demanding, and getting, better pork cuts such as loins and hams. Consequently, the next best outlet for this cut is in bacon.

Bacon demand never is heavy enough to absorb any huge tonnage, and a surplus is quickly created when hog butchering increases, as it is doing now. Packers are considering another bacon selling campaign which helped to move an over-supply several months ago when England's requirements declined.

Land-lease is no longer a large buyer of bacon. England, the main outlet for land-lease bacon, has built up a huge stock pile of the product from earlier shipments from the United States and for the next few months is expected to get virtually all its bacon from Canada. Canada produces a leaner type of hog and meat cuts preferred by the English to those provided by the United States. It is reported that Canadian packers have contracted to deliver an annual minimum of 40 per cent more bacon to England in the next two years than was delivered in 1943.

It will take about three or four weeks for the big packing plants to get much bacon into the domestic trade, but small plants expect to move it in greater volume to civilians within two weeks. Federal buyers of pork are particularly about the cure, since the method of curing has a direct relationship to the keeping quality of the product. Consequently, packing plants under federal inspection take about three weeks to cure bacon.

Smaller packers not under federal inspection, which do not sell to the government, give bacon a quick cure, using the same method developed for hams several years ago.
In this process curing fluid is pumped into the meat. About 10 days after the hog is butchered they can sell bacon into domestic channels which have a quick turnover and where storage for extended periods is not a problem.

Travelers Aid to Have Gala Party Dec. 16

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE woman's board of the Travelers Aid society, which is planning a gala party for the night of Dec. 16 in the Drake hotel, unconsciously produced a little gay poetry in the press agency of Mrs. Edwin W. Sims Jr., who arose at a meeting Wednesday to announce that "a glamorous international spy and three men from the F. B. I." will be among the guests that night. Called "A Cafe in Lisbon," the benefit dinner-dance will attempt to capture some of "the intrigue and continental atmosphere of the city which has become a melting pot for European refugees," according to Mrs. Edwin Benninghoven, chairman of decorations.

As for the identity of the spy, she will be tracked down by the men from the F. B. I. (chosen from among the dinner guests), who will be on the lookout for the most glamorous woman present. The chase will have a happy ending, however, for instead of being executed the spy will be given a spray of orchids.

The Gold Coast room and the adjoining French room, in which the bar and games will be located, will be completely transformed, with striped awnings, umbrellas over the tables, palms, and other colorful effects. The orchestra and entertainers will be in costume, including a favorite Negro pianist who will be on duty near the bar, wearing a caballero hat. Itinerant artists, strolling guitarists, a fortune teller, and even a bull fight game—really a drizzle in disguise—will add to the international atmosphere.

Mrs. Paul Butler, chairman of the party, designed the attractive mauve invitations and programs. She and her husband will be present until 7 p. m., although it will be next to the 11 o'clock of the Chicago Horse show, which will be held in the Coliseum from Dec. 9 to 17. Mr. Butler is president of the show.

Mrs. George E. Rose Jr. is president of the woman's board, whose members are active the year around in Travelers Aid work. War time travel conditions have doubled and redoubled the duties of the society, and much of its work today is with service men and their families.

On Today's Calendar. If there is a dearth of gentlemen at late gatherings this afternoon, blame it on Robert A. Carr, Hays MacFarland, Robert J. McKenna, Armand Bastien, and the others on the men's committee of Bundles for America, which is giving a "men only" party from 5 to 7 p. m. at Marshall Field & Co. Joseph L. Valentine, Melvin C. Martin, Dr. Otto Ball, Sidney S. Gorkin Jr., Philip Harrington, William D. Cox, Lt. Theron Chapman, Roger Faherty, Orville J. Taylor, Dr. Loyd S. Davis, and John B. Sherman are among the men who have donated $5 to the organization and accepted invitations to the cocktail party.

One of them will bring home a stunning suit—for his wife, however—and all will receive a priceless gift these days, a package of cigarettes. A case of popular brands has been donated anonymously to the benefit. Mr. Bastien and Preston Boyden have donated cases of bourbon, and Robert T. Martin, a case of Scotch.

Gregor Platigorsky, who is appearing with the Chicago Symphony orchestra this week, will be the special guest at an after-the-concert tea this afternoon at the Cliff Dwellers, where men usually outnumber female guests at these special teas.

Men definitely are in the minority at the Arts club tea, and at the reception planned in that smart club this afternoon there probably will be only the usual handful of masculine guests present. The tea will open an exhibition of Cuban painting circulated by the Museum of Modern Art, New York. Mrs. Arthur G. Cable will be hostess. Miss Lorraine Yerkes will arrange the tea table, at which 16 members of the club will take turns pouring. Mrs. John T. McCutcheon, Mrs. Chauncey M. McCormick, Mrs. Howard Linn, Mrs. Sewell Avery, and Mrs. Cecil Barnes are among them.

Mrs. William Sutherland will be hostess at today's tea at the English-Speaking Union. The special guest will be Mrs. Alice Gardner, an American volunteer in London, serving on the English-Speaking Union and the British War Relief society committees.

Mrs. George H. Williamson, president of the Illinois Association for the Crippled, and her board of governors will receive informally after 5 p. m.

Churches Vote 'No' on Draft at End of War

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 30.—Post-war conscription for military service, now under legislative consideration, was opposed in a resolution adopted here today by the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America. The biennial convention of the council closed tonight.

Thus, the majority section of American Protestantism has joined the Roman Catholic hierarchy in opposition to such legislation. The Catholic hierarchy opposed the proposal at its meeting in Washington, D. C., recently.

There was some opposition to the council's resolution, but a substitute offered by the Rochester, N. Y., council was overwhelmingly voted down.

The prevailing argument for the adoption of the resolution pointed to the hope of a satisfactory international organization for peace after the war which will make conscription unnecessary. It was successfully argued that such legislation should wait the coming peace and see that what may be needed.

"The churches believe the peace should establish procedures for controlling military establishments everywhere," the resolution stated. "To this end, the Christians of many nations are now directing their energies. We cannot foresee the precise nature or strength of the armaments that may be required by the world community when there shall have been established a general system of international security."

"We are not here pronouncing judgment for or against conscription, but we are pointing out that for the United States to change now its historical policy might be so interpreted as to prejudice the post-war settlement and jeopardize the possibility of achieving the kind of world order reflected in our government's war aims."

Consolidation of eight interchurch functional agencies, including the federal council, moved forward this afternoon when a resolution praising progress of the merger was adopted.

All of the greater agencies, such as the International Council of Religious Education, have formally agreed to the merger and have asked their constituent denominations for approval. Several denominations have given formal approval, but many are awaiting quadrennial, triennial, or biennial conventions for ratification.

Bishop G. Bromley Oxnam of the New York area of the Methodist church was inaugurated as president of the federal council for a two year term in colorful ceremonies in Trinity Episcopal cathedral. He was instituted by the retiring president, the Rt. Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, presiding bishop of the American Episcopal church.

Thru the Looking Glass

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Bet you thought there could be nothing new under the nail polish except, maybe, a color now and then. You'd be wrong. Something shining new has been added to polish this season. And when we say "shining" we mean it literally.

The woman who more than any one else led all the other women of the cosmopolitan world toward an appreciation of color on her toes and finger nails has decided that in this season of glitter color isn't quite enough. She has added a sparkling ingredient to four of her shades of highest fashion that gives the polishes a brand new look, and a look that is not only right in line with the "bejeweled" trend in fashions but that makes hands wonderfully lovely by night.

Not only does the polish have luster, it has a shimmering quality added to the basic color that makes it dainty, flattering, and ultra-fashionable in this year of sheen. It's gals, but not at all lurid, and we don't think for a minute that the new shimmering polish will be worn only for evening. It's pretty nifty, we think, in broad daylight.

The basic shade you choose will depend, of course, on your costume color. The four shades to which the new shimmer ingredient has been added are: (1) a rose with blue undertones that the fuchsia fans love. (2) a clear, true red. (3) a dreamy shade of pink, and (4) a soft, subtly coppery shade that is a smooth, smart color accent when and if you wear finger or henna tones. Take your choice.

These new polishes, or rather old polishes with new and distinctive oomph, are great fun.

Social Register in N. Y. Drops the Cromwells

New York, Nov. 30 (Special).—The names of Doris Duke and her husband, James H. R. (Jimmy) Cromwell, whose unsuccessful attempt to invalidate the Duke tobacco heiress' Reno divorce decree was termed a shakedown three days ago, have been omitted from the 1945 issue of the New York social register, it was disclosed today.

It was believed their litigation in New Jersey and Nevada courts was the cause of the omission, although, as usual, the register's board of governors gave no explanation why the heiress or the former minister to Canada or any one else failed to receive a listing.

President and Mrs. Roosevelt kept their accustomed listings, of course, but the register did make a point of showing that the long time tenants of the White house had dropped their memberships in the Sulgrave club in Washington, D. C. Their son, Col. Elliott Roosevelt, whose engagement to actress Faye Emerson just has been announced.

Among those who failed to obtain a listing were Gloria Vanderbilt, who married an actor's agent, Pat Di Cicco; her mother, Mrs. Reginald Vanderbilt; Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt; and Vanderbilt Sr.'s son, Cornelius (Noel) Vanderbilt Jr., who was omitted because he wrote "Farewell to Fifth Avenue."

Gertrude Gretsch, bride of John Jacob Astor, was listed in three different sections. Jane Wyatt, stage and screen star, unlisted after she became an actress, was returned to the register as Mrs. Edgar Ward.

Pageant Pays Tribute to Late Miss M'Dowell

Fifty years ago Mary E. McDowell arrived back of the yards and founded the University of Chicago settlement. Last night the neighborhood honored her memory at the half century celebration which will continue thru tomorrow.

When Miss McDowell arrived back of the yards in 1894, she found a community of broken sidewalks, foul smells, and Bubble creek, an open sewer which flowed to the Chicago river. She rented a four room flat, second floor rear, and quietly started her campaign for better housing, sanitation, and improved working conditions. Miss Christine Jeffek, a nurse who helped pitch the famous tent in the settlement yard for sick babies, recalled last night.

"The flies descended like a plague," Miss Jeffek said. "The houses were so black with them that the color of paint was seen only in small spots. The death rate for babies was excessively high when the health campaign was started. Later the Infant Welfare society took over and established a station in the neighborhood."

Mrs. Minnie Satek, 4999 S. Loomis st., one of the early residents of the community, recalled that "there were more saloons than grocery stores when Mary McDowell arrived at 47th and Ashland sts."

Last night a pageant depicting the community improvements secured under guidance of Miss McDowell was given. Colorful dances of the three nationalities which are most predominant in Packingtown—Poles, Mexicans, and the Czechs—were presented.

Miss Marguerite K. Sylla, head resident of the settlement, recalled that yesterday would have been the 90th birthday of Miss McDowell, who died in 1936. Miss Sylla, who has been head resident for nine years, said the settlement has grown from a small flat to a quadrangle of buildings at 4630 McDowell av., and is now valued at $132,856.

The settlement neighborhood has 20 nationalities. Twenty-one residents and up to 100 volunteers carry on a vigorous service program for 1,500 people in the neighborhood.

The 25th annual conference of the Illinois Association of Deans of Women, to be held today and tomorrow in the La Salle hotel, will lead student counselors from over the state focusing attention on current and post-war problems of high schools, colleges, and universities.

Among educators who will address the gathering will be Dr. Charles Bennett Congdon of the University of Chicago and Loyola university, who will discuss "Psychiatric Studies Concerning War Veterans," at a luncheon tomorrow, and Mrs. Ruth McCann, women's counselor at Northwestern university, who will talk at 8 o'clock tonight on "Some Assumptions Underlying Counseling."

Warner Bros. Studio Leaves 'Hays Office'

Hollywood, Cal., Nov. 30 (AP).—Withdrawal of Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., from the Association of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors because of dissatisfaction over certain association operations was announced by a studio spokesman tonight. The film company for 22 years has been a member of the association, more familiarly known as the "Hays Office," after the name of its director, Will H. Hays. Among reasons intimated by the spokesman for the withdrawal were asserted lack of cooperation of other association members with Warner in certain labor matters.

You're Giving Handkerchiefs—Guess Again

BY REA SEEGER.

The little, unpretentious handkerchief, with an equally small price sticker, has vanished. If you know your shopping, this is the year you'll appreciate that lone handkerchief, tucked in with a Christmas greeting card.

This is the Christmas a handkerchief really rates along with a pair of nylons. For the prices, we'll warn you, are something to make you blink. A Puritan plain piece of linen minus anything but a rolled hem has a price that puts it in the luxury class. Monogrammed beauties are priced well beyond a dollar, and the elaborately embroidered affairs take your breath away, not only because of the exquisite beauty of the embroidery and handwork, but also because of the price mark.

Lace trimmed squares, decorative trifles, and the most feminine of all frilled bits have likewise zoomed up to the luxury places—the more the lace, the more the price. Prints have kept reasonably within the price ranges of former years, and they are handsome colored effects to create magic contrast for pocket or bag. Some have white or pastel colored centers with the gay printed designs around the out-edge, others have the all-over printed design. Both the out-size and the regulation small squares are plentiful.

Men's handkerchiefs have astounding high price marks. Maybe it's because they're so much larger in area, and of such fine linen and decorated with such beautiful monograms. Two or three of such beauties will go out of your Christmas gift cash—enough to make you wrap them with gold paper, seal them with banker's red wax, and send them by bonded messenger. Yes, this is the year you'll pay thru the nose for any gift handkerchiefs.

Cellist Again Is at His Best; Orchestra Dull

Concert by the Chicago Symphony orchestra, under Deafauw conducting, Gregor Platigorsky, cellist. Presented at Orchestra hall Thursday evening, Nov. 3, 1944, and scheduled for repetition Friday afternoon.

The program: Symphonies, "Pastorale d'été"..... Honegger
Symphony, "Matthias the Painter"..... Hindemith
Concerto for Violoncello, A minor..... Schumann
Symphonic Suite, "Als and Loll"..... Prokofiev

BY CLAUDIA CASSIDY.

Well, which shall we have first, the good or the bad? The brilliant musicianship of Gregor Platigorsky, playing the Schumann Concerto so radiantly the audience refused to let him leave Orchestra hall without an encore, or the dismaying ineptitude of Désiré Deafauw's performance with the Chicago Symphony orchestra of Hindemith's "Matthias the Painter," which turned a superb score into a sodden mass of incoherence? They were as far apart as the musical poles, a saddening revelation of the decline in leadership of a once great orchestra, which only short seasons ago could hold its own with any soloist—and it had some great ones.

But Mr. Platigorsky makes pleasant writing. Refusing to try to turn a gentle work into a blazing showcase, he played Schumann for what he is, and his reward was a serenely lovely performance, sung as only a great cello can sing, with a slow movement that went straight to the heartstrings, and a finale tipped with fire. It was Mr. Platigorsky's show, as the accompaniment was a whisper behind a conductor's hand, and he did the best he could without stellar support. That best was enough to set the audience shouting, and he came back to add a brief, charming, and somehow rather sad little march by that other gifted Russian, Prokofiev.

Perhaps Mr. Deafauw should not conduct with score, the there are two sides to that one. He was not particularly happy in Honegger's "Pastorale d'été," with the score in front of him, and he turned a reverie of drowsy languor into a sluggish interlude opaque in color and thick in texture. But he was downright unhappy with Hindemith, plodding past by page thru the symphony without seeming to discover anything except that there is a lot of brass at the end. The orchestra played like a hack orchestra, which it is not, or like a pretty good orchestra clumping thru a dull rehearsal. Only in the opening of the third movement, when the score begins to shimmer in anticipation of that resplendent finale, did the strings sound even remotely like the Chicago Symphony orchestra Chicago has a right to know.

After Mr. Platigorsky deftly brought Prokofiev into the concert, Mr. Deafauw wound up the evening with the Scythian Suite which he revived at a Tuesday afternoon performance earlier in the season. Here he had no score to distract his attention, and he had early Prokofiev with nothing much to say, and a bravura way of saying it. When I left the hall he was well into a deft performance that evoked the best orchestral playing of the evening.

White Collar GIRL

BY RUTH MAC KAY

The most interesting holiday message to reach this desk is a department store's small, bright green disc—a phonograph record complete with needle. When you put it on the phonograph a man's clear and forceful voice reminds you there is a job waiting for you. On the other side of the record a woman's voice speaks of this fourth Christmas of the war and urges us to "be busy this Christmas."

There is no better advice. Busy-ness is the answer for many thousands of women who will don a white collar to forget their troubles, fill in empty hours, and make their own Christmas if not merry, at least useful.

With the finest of our American men on battle fields, in planes, or on the high seas, there is no place for idleness. "Be busy this Christmas" should be stitched—like an old fashioned sampler—on our white collars.

Opposites.
"Cut this off 1/4 inch longer"—from a blue print.

Can You Match This?
Our office is donating 25 cents per person each month for the purchase of one warm robe, blanket, mattress, or whatever comes to our notice, for one needy person. We are 40 strong, so that means we raise $10 a month by giving up one soda or milk shake. And we've become deeply interested in the cases called to our attention.

Movie Called 'Brazil' Is Bit on Nutty Side

"BRAZIL"

A Republic picture, directed by Joseph Santley, stars the Duke of Windsor, Robert Livingston, Vera and Yolanda, and Ray Rogers, and presented at the Chicago.

BY ALBERT GOLDBERG.

The producer's own opinion of this long drawn out quasi-musical may be deduced from the fact that it is a typical technical subject, the photography is in economical black and white.

Virginia Bruce, having written a best seller called "Why Marry a Latin?" which denigrates all males south of the equator, decides post festum to take a trip to Brazil and find out what it's all about. Although ostensibly a sight-seeing tour, about all she sees of the country is the interior of night clubs, such limited vistas as may conveniently and inexpensively be reproduced on a Hollywood lot, and Tito Guizar. This in spite of Virginia's oft-repeated statement, "I want to see the real Brazil. I want to know how THE PEOPLE live!" Virginia needs to practice the "I mean it!" tone of voice.

Tito volunteers to be Virginia's guide, and she accepts with what seemed to us a little undue alacrity. Tito is really Brazil's greatest composer and singer, but he doesn't tell Virginia that. He tells her that he is the twin brother of the great man, and for the rest of the picture is busy playing twins with himself—and you know what that can do to a plot.

Tito also has trouble with his best friend, Edward Everett Horton, who is in charge of a travel agency, but who, since there is no travel for the duration, has a lot of time to worry about Tito. Tito, it seems, has contracted to write a song for an American publisher, but as the deadline approaches finds guiding Virginia much more pleasant than musical creation. Need we go on with the plot?

In one of the numerous night clubs our tourist visits in search of knowledge Veloz and Yolanda do a turn—which will neither make nor break their reputation—and in another Roy Rogers, "king of the cowboys," sings, which seems to be about all there is left for cowboys. And of course Tito sings. When Tito sang here in person recently in our Civic Opera house the music critics did not exactly crown him with laurels. But a sound track is a wonderful thing, the you can't expect it to work miracles.

As a refresher course in Portuguese "Brazil" has its merits, but if your taste is anything like ours you'll take a powder—or at least a Brazil nut—on its other features.

Looking at Hollywood

By Hedda Hopper

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Nov. 30.—I've rarely heard happier people than Faye Emerson and Col. Elliott Roosevelt were when they called at 1:30 a. m. yesterday to tell me they were going to be married.

Elliott said, "Isn't it wonderful, Hedda?" It was, and even more so than he knew, because both he and his brother, Jimmy, promised me a break, Jimmy with his divorce from Betsy, and Elliott with his marriage to Faye. They don't have to put up with Hollywood shenanigans, and reprisals in print mean nothing to them. They're not of Hollywood, nor are they afraid. . . . Well, well! After one success, Mrs. Danny Kaye was telling Gypsy Rose Lee everybody in Hollywood wanted to entertain them, but they don't like Hollywood, and fan writers drive them crazy. Tut, tut! That is not the way to win friends and influence people—and Sam won't like it. . . . 'Tis said Lucy Cochran of Boston is dividing her time between Errol Flynn and Bruce Cabot. Maybe so, but she spends most every dinner date with Dwight Whitney.

Hurry, Harry! It's Getting Late.

No wonder Rosamond Marshall, who wrote "Kitty," couldn't see the film while she was here. The end of the picture will have to be reshot. Maybe they'd better hurry up, since Paulette Goddard's going to have a baby. . . . Paramount's looking for a new star for "Well Groomed Bride," since Paulette's condition scarcely matches the title. In it, Dennis O'Keefe gets co-billing with the girl and Ray Milland—also Dennis gets the girl. . . . Ran into Phil Spitalny before he took off for New York. He told about visiting Hollywood Park with a couple of expert horsemen. They gave him tips that dipped his bankroll down. When he saw a horse named Boston Maid he put two dollars on the nose for each of his 35 girls. Maid came home, paid $92 for $2, and his experts fainted! . . . Susanna Foster did everything she could to build up popularity of Turhan Bey and get him breaks. So when he got them he devoted himself to Lana Turner.

Swell Guys—Jack and Eddie.

I wonder if Jack Conway's friends know how desperately ill he is in Good Samaritan hospital. Eddie Sutherland, as well as Jack's wife, has been with him day and night. Jack is one of our most popular directors. . . . Frank Fay was wanted for a guest spot with Edgar Bergen, but the idea was dropped when he insisted on seven and a half minutes' time. That's more than Edgar gets. . . . In the silent version of "Enchanted Cottage," Dick Barthelmess got the bigger role, because as a star he was bigger than May McEvoy. But in the present version, Dorothy McGuire gets more attention than the man. The problem of a disgraced soldier returning to his sweetheart is one that many women will have to face when this war's over. Incidentally, Bob Young turned down "Affairs of Susan" to play in "Enchanted Cottage" because it's serious. He's done nothing lately except comedies.

Nature Lovers, or Just Lovers.

Harry James and Betty Grable are looking for the contented life, meaning a well stocked farm, with cows, chickens, and pigs. When they find it they'll sell their big Beverly Hills mansion. The other night when Harry made recordings Betty sat like a mouse for six hours, watching, listening, and applauding. . . . Wonder why we don't hear more of Elsie Janis. In the audience when she broadcast, a couple of kids sat with an older lady. One kid said aloud to Elsie, "Geel! She's old enough to be my mother." The other one replied, "That may be, but she's the best thing we've heard today. I wish she'd asked us to join in when she sang 'Hinky Dinky Parlez Vous.'" Well, I wish she had, too.

Sally Requests a Washer for Mother of Two

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

While we can appreciate that such items are very scarce, we hope some reader can provide a washing machine for Mrs. S. She is the mother of two children, 2 years and 7 months old, respectively. She has been extremely ill since the birth of her last child, and it is no longer possible for her to do laundry by hand. Her husband is ill and hospitalized, and at the present time the only income is a small savings. We would be glad to provide further information to any interested reader.

Mr. J. has been ill for many years and recently was released from the hospital after recovering from a serious operation. An assisting agency has provided living quarters for him, but it is necessary that he attend a clinic twice a week. It will be impossible for him to do this unless suitable clothing can be obtained. His needs include underwear, size 44; an overcoat, size 40; and shoes, size 9 1/2 or 10. Since he is not very strong, it is preferable that items be mailed to him. We will be glad to provide the address to any interested reader.

Another elderly invalid has asked our assistance in locating a radio. He has just been released from the hospital after a series of operations, and is still unable to walk. He would be deeply grateful for a radio to help him pass the time.

Help the Child to Overcome Fear of Dark

(Copyright, 1944, by News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

As we were saying recently in talking about the fear of darkness we who have children for even those of us who just have contacts with children should do everything in our power to avoid frightening them or allowing others to do so. Also, we should try to make darkness seem friendly and familiar to them. But in spite of our efforts, sometimes our children will develop this fear. In fact, most children, whether they admit it or not, at some time in their lives have a fear of darkness. When they do, we should try to help them, not ridicule them or call them cowards.

How we shall cope with this fear of the dark depends somewhat upon the age of our child. But in general, some of these suggestions may help:

Try to find out, by watching or asking at a tactful moment, what the fear is—fear of robbers, ghosts, and so forth.

Also try to find out what has aroused it. If you can do so, you diminish most fears by "airing them on the line."

Be reassuring and comforting, but not too solicitous a way.

Do not force your child into the dark room or dark outdoors that he fears. Have him go where he is supposed to, but if he is little, go with him; leave a low light in his room, or give him a flashlight if he has to go outdoors.

See if there is anything strange-looking in his room, caused by some rearrangement of furniture. Also, run up a flapping shade or fasten a creaky shutter, with a joking comment.

Show him the night sky, with its stars and moon. Make him feel that night is meant to help us, for its rest and quiet.

Be reassuring and understanding, yet matter-of-fact. Help, don't force. And remember that fear of darkness is like other phases of childhood. It passes with time.

The bidding:
North East South West
1 club Double 2 hearts 3 spades
2 spades 3 clubs Pass
Pass 6 spades Pass Pass
Double Pass Pass Pass

Opening lead: King of hearts.

The auction was somewhat picturesque. South's bid of two hearts over the double was intended as an obstructive measure and not as a strength-showing bid. At this point, the proper procedure to show power would be a redouble. West's free bid is justified since he holds one and one-half honor tricks, and note that in response to the double, the five-card major is preferred to the five-card minor. The last two rounds of bidding were highly speculative.

VETERAN LISTED AMONG MISSING IN ALLIED DRIVE

Hold Services Tomorrow for Pacific Soldier.

PVT. GEORGE M. RUDOLPH, 19, a veteran of fighting in Normandy, Brittany, and Luxembourg, has been missing in action since Oct. 19, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Rudolph, 626 Washington blvd., have been notified by the war department. He is a graduate of De Paul academy where he was active in sports. His parents said they had received word that he was the first allied soldier to enter several French towns.

MEMORIAL services for Pvt. Thomas M. Williams, 26, who died on Black Island June 1 as a result of wounds received in action, will be held in St. Michael's church, Washington blvd., and Kildare ave. at 9 a. m. tomorrow. Pvt. Williams was a graduate of Our Lady of Lourdes school, and before entering the army was an employee of the radio station WLS. Survivors include his mother, Mrs. Frank Williams of 1803 S. Sawyer ave. and two brothers, David and Joseph.

PVT. STANLEY PYRCE, 31, who went overseas with the infantry in July, was killed in Italy Oct. 3, his mother, Mrs. Sophie Pyrc, 4307 S. Sawyer ave., has been notified. Surviving also are two brothers, Charles, a sailor, and Thaddeus, a soldier. Memorial mass will be held at 9 a. m. Dec. 16 in St. Casimir church.

FIRST LT. JOHN KENNEDY, lead navigator in a Flying Fortress group, failed to return from a mission over Germany Nov. 16, the war department advised his mother, Mrs. Leona Kennedy, 416 N. Madison st., Woodstock. He had been on 42 missions.

SGT. CHARLES GONIOR, 21, nose gunner on a Liberator bomber, failed to return from a raid over Austria Nov. 15, his wife, Jean Daly Gonior, was advised. He had 20 previous missions to his credit. Mrs. Gonior resides with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Daly, 202 McHenry ave., Woodstock.

MRS. W. E. CLOW DIES OF HEART ATTACK AT 83

Services for Mrs. Margaret Sarver Clow, 83, widow of William Elsworth Clow, will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow in her home, 900 N. Green Bay rd., Lake Forest, where she died of a heart attack Wednesday night. In 1942, a few months before her husband's death, they celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. Her 56th anniversary in 1938 they celebrated by taking an auto trip thru Wisconsin. They were married in 1892, 15 years after Mr. Clow came to Chicago to join his father in James B. Clow & Sons, manufacturers of plumbing equipment. The family has been prominent in social and civic affairs of Lake Forest for many years. Surviving are two sons, William E. Jr. and Kent S. Clow, and a daughter, Mrs. Donald B. Douglas.

WIRT WRIGHT, 66, CHURCH LEADER, EX-BANKER, DIES

Wirt Wright, 66, treasurer of the Episcopal church of Chicago since 1935 and once president of the Illinois Bankers' association, died in St. Luke's hospital last night after an extended illness. His home was at 421 Belmont ave. Mr. Wright, a native of Libertyville, Lake county, began his career as a teller for N. W. Harris & Co., Chicago, in 1901. From 1926 to 1935 he was president of the State Bank and Trust company, Evanston.

Surviving are his widow, Addie; a daughter, Catherine; three brothers, and a sister. Funeral services will be held at 11 a. m. Monday in St. Luke's Episcopal church, Evanston.

ANIMALS ARRIVE FOR TOMORROW'S FAT STOCK SHOW

Many Raised by 4-H Club Members

BY GAIL COMPTON.
The vanguard of more than 5,500 prime farm animals arrived in the city's swirling snowstorm yesterday morning for the Chicago Market Fat Stock show. The display will be held in the open pens and buildings of the stock yards. Admission is free.

This streamlined show, with the utilitarian rule that all animals shown must be sold for meat, is the famous International Live Stock exposition which each year made Chicago the agricultural center of the world.

Rural youth will be well represented by 520 exhibitors proudly showing their prize-winning lambs, pigs, and hogs they raised themselves for the show.

Typical Winner Back.
Typical is 18 year old T. Richard Lacy of Kansas, Ill., who for the last two years has walked off with the grand champion prize for the best steer in all classes. Lacy has netted more than $25,000 in prize and sale money in the last four years. He is back again with three sleek Herefords, hoping to chalk up another victory.

Tomorrow the carlot exhibitions of animals will be weeded out. This will be followed Sunday by judging of fat cattle loads. Monday the junior feeding contest will be judged. The grand champions of the different classes will be chosen Tuesday. Wednesday and Thursday will be devoted chiefly to the sale of the animals.

E. L. BURCHARD, EX-RECREATION SECRETARY, DIES

Services for Edward L. Burchard, 71, consultant to and former executive secretary of the Chicago Recreation commission, will be held at 2 p. m. today in Freepost, Stephens county, where he died unexpectedly Wednesday night while visiting relatives. He lived at 7550 Crandon av.

Mr. Burchard was the son of the late Horatio C. Burchard, a member of congress from Illinois from 1869 to 1879, and director of the mint from 1879 to 1885.

Mr. Burchard joined the Chicago Recreation commission in 1914, continuing actively as its executive secretary to 1940. Between those years he served as an adviser to many civic groups. He wrote and compiled numerous works on civics and philanthropy. He leaves a daughter, Mrs. R. P. Bradish, Los Angeles, Cal.

Robert W. Conway.
Services for Robert W. Conway, 76, a former deputy United States marshal, who died Thursday in St. Bernard hospital, will be held this morning in the chapel at 6915 Wentworth av. He served in the Chicago area under United States Marshal Robert Levy and was detailed to the protection of railway properties during the railroad strike of 1922. Before 1900 he guarded 800 miles of track in the northwest under similar circumstances, his friends said. While in Montana, his friends relate, Conway and an Indian guide led a posse which killed six bandits who had robbed the Adams Express company of $150,000.

Miss Della O'Boyle.
Miss Della O'Boyle, 86, life long resident of Batavia, died yesterday in her home at 120 Della st. Surviving is a brother, Edward J. O'Boyle, 71, with whom she lived. Services will be held at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in the Holy Cross church, Batavia.

One group or individual will gain control of Midland Utilities company if the modified plan for reorganization of it and its parent, Midland United company, wins final approval from the state securities commission.

As modified by the securities and exchange commission, the plan was approved Wednesday by Judge John Higgs Jr. in the United States District court for Delaware. The court scheduled a hearing for tomorrow to determine the plan for the reorganization of the company.

Even after acceptance of the plan by the group, one hurdle remains. A petition has been filed by a group of Midland Utilities prior stockholders and Midland United stockholders in the United States District Court of Appeals in Chicago asking a review of the SEC order modifying the reorganization plan.

Should the Appeals court uphold the petition of the group, who plan to withdraw the petition, the question of the status of the plan as approved by the federal District court would have to be decided by the United States Supreme court.

The SEC and the trustees of the two companies have moved for the dismissal of the appeal on the ground that any appeal must be taken from the final decision of the District court.

Observers said the stock of the reorganized company would be spread among Midland Utility debt holders, Midland United prior stockholders, Midland United preferred stockholders with not enough shares going to any one group to give it control.

Under the plan the largest single stockholder would be Midland West corporation, which it was said has agreed with the SEC to sell its stock, either on the market or to underwriters shortly after the stock goes into operation. When this is holding stock and it would be a publicly held corporation, it was explained.

The plan provides a directorship of five for the new company. William D. Gale, vice president of Commonwealth Edison company, named by the secured creditors of Midland United and Midland Utilities; Hamilton Allport, president of Midland United; and three others to be named jointly by trustees of Midland United and Midland Utilities with approval of the SEC and the federal District court.

It was said the SEC has indicated it wishes security holders and the public security holders and will not approve a director who represents "inside" interests.
